LOS ANGELES, Feb. 29.

IN THIS city, last night, the Basque Uzcudun fought the giant Negro Godfrey, 40,000 people paying $125,000 to look on, a pitifully small sum compared with what "cultured Easterners" pay for a heavyweight fight.

HOW men spend their time or money is their business. The State of California has chosen to disgrace itself, like many Eastern states, by legalizing prize fighting. Such prize fighting, being profitable and dishonest, will continue.

THE people of Los Angeles not interested in fights note that "policemen on motorcycles escorted the Negro from his training ranch to the prize ring." Average citizens, none too prosperous, pay in taxes for the gasoline that runs those motorcycles, and pay the policemen's wages.

Some will think the Negro prize fighter, 6 feet 4½ inches tall, weight 235 pounds, "reach" 80 inches, might find his own way to the prize ring, also the white fighter.

IN THIS happy city you find any food that your mind requires. Old-fashioned preachers will tell you what Hell looks like and how to keep out of it. Others guarantee that there is no such place. The problem is to be happy while you are here.

A HUNDRED healers here will cure you of anything. Another hundred will prove that there is nothing the matter with you except in your own mind, if you happen to have one.

Others assure you there is no sickness, no need of healing, no mind at all, NOTHING BUT LOVE.

ONE sign on a private residence reads "Free Talk on Retaining and Regaining Youthful Voice." Retired women struggle to retain or to regain the affection of middle-aged dull husbands, shaped like seals or walruses. Very pathetic.

AS regards crime, the City of Cleveland excels in police efficiency. The percentage is 82 against 63 in Baltimore, 36 in Kansas City, 16 in St. Louis. The National Crime Commission publishes Dr. Louis N. Robinson's statement that police inefficiency and leniency in courts has made crime almost the safest business in the United States. The percentage of failure is lower than in the retail grocery business, for instance.

IN CHICAGO, insurance companies notify the citizens that they will insure against bombing of buildings by various branches of crime, bootleggers, competing labor organizations, etc. If you can't discourage crime, the next best is to insure against it—although it doesn't help much if you happen to be at home, for the bombing.

STEFANSSON, Arctic explorer, tests in a hospital, under medical supervision, a diet consisting exclusively of fresh meat and water. Thousands within the Arctic circle live on such a diet for months at a time, some of them eating as much as 20 pounds of fresh meat in a day.

BUT it is not a good diet. Men were put on the earth to cultivate it, and should eat all of its products, the spices and the oranges of the South, and the red meat from the West. But if compelled to choose between all meat and all vegetables, choose the meat.

You probably will not live as long, but you will think more. A vegetable diet is not good for thinking.

STOCK of a street car trust in New York hopped up on the Stock Exchange yesterday. A learned United States judge ordered authorities to show cause why that trust should not increase its fare from five to seven cents. That increase would mean about forty million more dollars a year, taken from the pockets of the working people of New York.

ONE "cause" that could be mentioned is the fact that the street car monopoly has a contract with the city limiting fares to five cents. In the case of ordinary citizens signing a lease that would be cause enough. It may be otherwise with a big corporation that needs the money.

MOSCOW statistics for 1927 show four divorces for every five marriages. Divorces may equal marriages. That is not as bad as it seems. Some young Russians, according to report, are divorced five and six times in one year.

RUSSIAN authorities say this is a proof of good morals, proving that young people insist on retaining the marriage status, even if they change every month, and that they will not sink to promiscuity. This must stir emulation in our young "trial" and "companionate" marriage enthusiasts.

BOMB LODGE OF ELIZABETH MINERS

BLAST WRECKS DOZEN STORES

Store fronts of a dozen buildings in Market street, Elizabeth, were wrecked early today by a bomb placed in the doorway of one of the wrecked establishments. Members of nine families were hurled from their beds and the entire neighborhood was awakened by the explosion that was heard six miles away. Damage is estimated between $50,000 and $75,000.

The building in which the bomb was placed is occupied by the barber shop of Alfred Scott, a Negro, and rooms of Maple View Lodge of Negro Elks. Police believe the bomb was set off to terrorize members of the lodge who are working in the Warden mine of the Pittsburgh Coal Company, near Elizabeth.

Several men were seen running from the doorway of the barber shop a few minutes before the blast rocked the borough. The men entered two automobiles and drove away, according to Anthony Forte, a watchman employed by the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad. They also were seen by Mrs. Josiah Simpson, who lives across the street.

MAN HURT IN BLAST

The building occupied by the barber shop and lodge rooms is owned by the Gamble estate. It virtually was demolished, as was the combined grocery store and residence of Joseph Van Fossen. Van Fossen was cut and bruised when a window was blown onto his bed. His daughter and her husband, Mrs. and Mr. Joseph Ward, and a son, Howard Van Fossen, were hurled from their beds. The interior of the store below them was wrecked.

Other buildings damaged were those occupied by the poolroom of Bernard Kassler, the barber shop

TURNED OUT BY FUND

By WALTER CHAMBERS,
Aviation Editor Sun-Telegraph.

NEW YORK, Feb. 29.—Rear Admiral Hutchinson I. Cone, vice president and director the Guggenheim Fund for the Promotion of Aeronautics, and Col. Charles A. Lindbergh today emphatically disavowed any connection with the "fuelless motor" developed in Pittsburgh by Lester J. Hendershot.

At the same time Admiral Cone, who was, before his retirement, chief engineer officer of the United States Navy, expressed to The Sun-Telegraph his thanks and that of the Guggenheim Fund for bringing to his attention the statements of scientists and business men formerly associated with Hendershot.

Admiral Cone's statement followed closely the sudden return to Detroit last night of Maj. Thomas N. Lanphier, commander of the First Pursuit Squadron, Army Air Corps, who declared at a conference in Admiral Cone's office that Hendershot's model, which he claims gathers unlimited electric current from the magnetic fields erected in the earth's rotation, will be immediately given another demonstration and then torn apart in minute pieces. Maj. Lanphier admitted that it was he, primarily through personal friendship for D. Farr Peat, manager of Bettis Field McKeesport, and "partner and business manager" of Hendershot, who brought it to the attention of Col. Lindbergh and the Guggenheim Fund.

STOPPED BY TOUCH

Col. Lindbergh witnessed a demonstration of the motor last week in Detroit. Early in February it was shown in the offices of the ## Jacksonville Pact—Was It Binding?

THE SUN-TELEGRAPH is printing herewith the Jacksonville agreement between the coal operators and the miners, that readers may determine for themselves, whether, as charged by the Senate Sub-Committee investigating the strike, the Pittsburgh Coal Company violated the agreement, or if, as the coal company maintains, the agreement was merely an "arrangement" which it was free to ignore at any time it chose.

Over the signature of J. A. Donaldson, then vice president, the Pittsburgh Coal Company, on February 19, 1924, became party to an agreement entered into by a joint conference of operators and miners of Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Western Pennsylvania at Jacksonville, Fla., which reaffirmed the wage scale contracts then existing between the United Mine Workers of America and the coal operators whose interests were represented in the conference, and extended the same for a period of three years, from April 1, 1924, to March 31, 1927, in all of their terms, provisions and conditions.

The Pittsburgh Coal Company reduced wages on August 16, 1925.

The Jacksonville agreement follows:

INTERSTATE AGREEMENT

JACKSONVILLE, Fla.
Feb. 19, 1924.

The following agreement was entered into by the representatives of the coal operators and miners of Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Western Pennsylvania:

1. This joint conference of operators and miners of Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Western Pennsylvania, as now constituted, hereby reaffirms the wage scale contracts now existing between the United Mine Workers of America and the Coal Operators whose interests are represented in this conference, and hereby extends the same for a period of three years, from April 1, 1924, to March 31, 1927, in all of their terms, provisions and conditions. It is understood the execution of this Interstate Agreement extends, without further negotiations, the District and Sub-District Agreements now in effect in the districts affected.

2. That an Inter-State Joint Conference of the Central Competitive Field shall assemble the second Monday of February, 1927, at Miami, Fla., and the President of the United Mine Workers of America and the Chairman of his Joint Inter-State Conference are authorized and instructed to send out notices at the proper time as to the assembling of the conference.

The wage contracts which the Jacksonville agreement reaffirmed were made on March 19, 1920.

Notwithstanding that A. J. Musser, vice president and general manager of the Clearfield Bituminous Coal Corporation, told the Senate committee investigating the miners' strike that he considered the Jacksonville agreement "a valid contract," notwithstanding that Horace F. Baker, president of the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corporation, has taken pride in the fact that his company kept the agreement up to the time of its expiration on March 31, 1927—notwithstanding the attitude of these officials and companies, the Pittsburgh Coal Company has maintained that although it was a party to the agreement it did not break it when it reduced wages below the schedule called for in the pact.

Couldn't Scream!

EDNA MAY SMITH

When a man poked a revolver against her side and told her to keep quiet, Edna May Smith, 16, of 1208 Steiman street, admitted she couldn't have screamed if she had so wished—which she did. Another of the robbers pointed a gun at Miss Smith's friend, Hugh Henderson, 19, of 1919 Metropolitan street, while the two were walking in Fulton street, near Fayette street, at 9 o'clock last night and robbed Henderson of $10. "We'll stay home and play 'cinch' after this," Miss Smith said.

Lindy Flies Damaged Plane

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Feb. 9.—(INS.)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, who hopped off from Curtiss Field at 10:12 o'clock for Albany, where he is to speak this afternoon on aviation measures before the New York State Legislature, landed at the local flying field at 11:53 o'clock. His arrival here was entirely unexpected. It is believed he chose the local landing field so as to avoid a crowd of several hundred persons who were waiting for him at the Albany field.

Despite the fact that the Lone Eagle's plane was without a tail skid and had a damaged rudder, due to an accident in taking off from the Long Island field, he made a perfect landing at the local field.

SURPRISE LANDING

There were only six persons on the local flying field when the famous flier swooped down from the clouds to make a perfect landing despite the damaged condition of his plane.

F. W. Rice, an official of the General Electric Company, who was tipped off from New York a half hour before Col. Lindbergh reached here that he might land at the local field, was on hand to greet the Lone Eagle.

Lindbergh jumped into Rice's automobile and in a few minutes was on his way to Albany.

LABOR AGAIN URGED TO AID MINERS

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS,
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29.—Another appeal to all organized labor for money, clothing, food supplies for the mine workers of Western Pennsylvania and the other striking bituminous area has been issued by the executive council of the American Federation of Labor through President William Green.

Calling attention to the duration of the strike and the financial demands made on organized labor, President Green said the condition of the miners "pitiable and their needs for relief and assistance have been greatly increased.

He strongly urged that the Federation's appeal be met by a liberal response on the part of the public generally.

An effort to find some legislative remedy for the industrial paralysis in the union soft coal fields will be made by the special Senate committee which has returned from a

More Vote Cheaters To Plead

Tentative offers of numerous indicted election officials to enter pleas of guilty, received by First Assistant District Attorney Andrew T. Park during the last month, were increased today when Attorney Benjamin Lencher, after conferring with Park and District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner, stated that he would advise clients involved in the primary election prosecutions to enter pleas of guilty.

The offers have been received as the result of a statement issued by Park several weeks ago, construed as an invitation to election officials who acted without criminal intent and were victims of domineering influences on the election boards, to make a clean breast of the proceedings of the board. Paroles will be asked for such officials, it has been

4 MARINES KILLED BY NICARAGUAN REBELS

By International News Service

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Feb. 29.—Four United States marines were killed and nine wounded, one seriously, when a detachment of 36 men were ambushed and attacked by rebels with machine guns between Yali and Condega, according to a report made to the United States legation today.

The attack took place on Monday afternoon while the marines were convoying an empty pack train from Yali to Condega.

The scene of the fight is about 25 miles from Jinotega.

News of the casualties was not received until today owing to interruption of communications.

Identified As Jewel Robber

That A. S. Meyers, 21, of Portsmouth, Va., and a companion bound him with a sheet while they robbed the home of F. W. Henninger, 1461 Bennington avenue, of $15,000 in jewels, last May, was the testimony in Morals Court today of Charles Walker, 29, a Negro, who was a butler in the residence at the time of the robbery.

Meyers was arrested yesterday at Fifth avenue and Wood street when he appeared to keep an engagement with a "girl friend." Instead he was met by City Detectives Peter Connors and Frank Nowicki.

Meyers had been a guest at the Henninger home a short time before the robbery, and, it was testified, gained entrance the day of the robbery through friendship with the butler.

Magistrate A. D. Brandon turned Meyers over to the district attorney, the suspect having been indicted for the robbery with "Jerry Doe," a companion not yet arrested.

Slashes Husband In Fight

A husband and wife are in Allegheny General Hospital, the latter under guard, following a battle on Cremo street early today, after the wife had chopped down the door of her husband's saloon.

James J. Connelly, 39, saloonkeeper, of 200 West General Robinson street, was slashed on the chest by his wife, Mollie, 24, who wielded a paring knife. In the battle she was cut on the head, bruised about the abdomen and a bone was broken in her right hand.

Police summoned to the saloon at 2 o'clock found the door chopped open and learned the couple had quarreled on the street, Connelly taking refuge in the saloon. When the wife smashed the door Connelly fled to the street, pursued by his wife, who cut him on the chest. In the melee the woman was injured.

Ten days ago the couple was arrested after Mrs. Connelly had slashed her husband with a paring knife, but the case was adjusted in Morals Court. Police say jealousy is the cause of their warring.

THUGS ROB MAN WITH GIRL

Flourishing revolvers, two armed thugs last night robbed Hugh Henderson, of 1919 Metropolitan street, of $19, while he was walking with Miss Edna May Smith, of 1208 Stedman street, in Fulton street near Fayette street. Nothing was taken from Miss Smith. Warning the couple to make no outcry the bandits ran down Fulton street and escaped.

PLAN SEEN AS HOPE FOR SLAVES TO DRUGS

In Representative Stephen G. Porter's home city his bill for the establishment of Federal narcotic farms is receiving unqualified support. Civic organizations, churches, women's clubs and philanthropic institutions are giving Porter's measure first place on their programs for constructive legislation.

"In looking about for humane treatment for drug addicts, rural isolation offers a solution for the problem," wrote Frank Davis Preston, Western Pennsylvania manager of the Public Charities Association of Pennsylvania. "Every social worker and those familiar with the suffering of narcotic victims will indorse the Porter bill. It is good policy, good economy and good humanitarism."

Dr. R. H. Martin, president of the National Reform Association, from his Pittsburgh headquarters wired Congressman Porter:

"The National Reform Association urges international legislation whereby the growth of the poppy and other herbs used in the manufacture of opium be limited at the source of growth to the minimum requirement for medicinal purposes. Anything beyond this is a curse of humanity. We urge further support to the bill providing for the establishment of farms where drug addicts may receive treatment for their disease."

The Mothers' Pension League of Allegheny County in its plea for support of Porter's bill stated:

"The use of narcotics is chief among the causes of ruined homes and the dependency of children. Narcotic farms will be a means of checking the evil and offer humane treatment for addicts. This organization offers its wholehearted support."

By International News Service.

CHICAGO, Feb. 29.—Col. Robert W. Stewart, one of the central figures in the United States Senate oil investigation, who defied the request of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., to "tell all" to the Senate, will be re-elected chairman of the board of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana at the meeting tomorrow, it was learned today by International News Service.

A large majority of the members of the board—in fact almost a unanimous vote—will place Col. Stewart back in the chairman's seat despite the fact that he is viewed with displeasure by Rockefeller, it was learned.

made clear. The evident intent of the district attorney's office is to punish the board official chiefly responsible for the cheating, with the assistance of the board members not regarded as culpable.

It has been generally reported for many weeks that the Republican organization leaders, particularly the ward chairmen, have raised large sums to defend the election officials, but the determination of the district attorney's office to vigorously prosecute the charges is believed to have influenced the leaders to take advantage of the offer to punish the guilty and release the "dupes" on probation.

TORCH KILLER WRITES NEW SUICIDE NOTE

By International News Service

NEWARK, N. J., Feb. 29.—Another letter from the "torch murderer" of Miss Margaret Brown, Park avenue governess, has been received by police here, it was announced today by Deputy Chief Frank Brex.

"No need looking for me," the letter said. "I am stopping temporarily with friends here, but I am going to leave almost any day. If you do get near me you won't take me, because I have with me a nice-looking and nice-tasting bottle which I will take because I don't want to be burned to hell with Jersey justice."

The letter, which was signed "From ——?" was printed with a pencil. Brex refused to reveal where or when the letter had been mailed.

TURNED OUT BY FUND

Guggenheim Fund here. At that time Admiral Cone was criticised by Hendershot and Peat because he placed his finger on the model, thereby stopping the motor. In that simple feat, according to aeronautical engineers interviewed in the Guggenheim offices, lies an indication of the "principle involved in the invention."

Col. Lindbergh, who flew from New York to Albany today, is a member of the board of trustees of the Guggenheim Fund, in whose behalf Admiral Cone issued the statement.

"While Col. Lindbergh did not see the statement, the Fund is in position to express that his views are in accord with it," the admiral said.

The Guggenheim statement follows:

During last few days newspaper reports have mistakenly connected the name of the Daniel Guggenheim Fund for the Promotion of Aeronautics with a reported invention of an electro magnetic motor. The Fund has no connection whatsoever with this enterprise.

Some months ago the reported invention was submitted to certain members of the Fund for their consideration, but the Fund was unwilling to take any action in regard to it until it had been exhaustively tested.

SCIENTISTS HURL DEFI

American scientists defy all inventors of alleged "fuelless motors" to demonstrate the practicability of their inventions.

Pittsburgh's leading electrical engineers, physicists and investigators in scientific research, at a meeting today in the Hochstetler Research Laboratories in the Benedum-Trees Building, arranged for a national gathering of the leading scientists of the country to convene in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, New York, at 10 a. m. tomorrow, when a formal challenge will be issued to all persons who claim inventions to produce power or light from the natural energy of the earth or the atmosphere.

The challenge will be aimed particularly at Lester J. Hendershot, of West Elizabeth, and his backers in their demonstrations of a device which it has been claimed will operate a motor without fuel. Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, representative of the Ford Motor Company, the Guggenheim Foundation and others said to be interested in Hendershot's invention, will be called upon to attend. Nicola Tesla, electrical wizard, electrical engineers from all the New York universities and technical institutions, and representatives from the Edison laboratories, the Rockefeller Foundation and the United States government have been invited to attend the meeting at the Waldorf.

EXPERTS MEET HERE

F. W. Hochstetter presided at the meeting of Pittsburgh scientists which was attended by Dr. L. P. Selg, dean of the graduate school of the University of Pittsburgh; Dr. W. R. Worts, director of the department of electrical engineering of the Carnegie Institute of Technology; P. Guest, director of the electrical laboratories of the United States Bureau of Mines; H. O. Swoboda, consulting engineer; George F. Dellig, bridge structural engineer, and others who have made a study of the science of harnessing electrical energy.

Answering Hendershot's statement that he had deliberately faked one of the models given to Hochstetter for examination, Hochstetter today demanded why Hendershot "at the same time had faked the United States government by offering the specifications of the same machine to the patent office." Hochstetter exhibited documents showing that Hendershot's invention had been rejected by examiners for the commissioner of patents on August 12, 1925.

Hochstetter said that J. C. Trees, who had contracted to finance Hendershot's patents, gave up the matter when the patent office reports supported the contentions of scientific investigators, and no effort was made to prosecute the inventor. The big heartedness of Trees was said by Hochstetter to be the chief reason for showing leniency to Hendershot.

The city plans to erect a monumental fire station on the property.

LAY UNION KILLINGS TO 'FASCISTS'

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Feb. 29.—Charging that "a murder machine, controlled by Fascist murderers acting for operators and contractors" is responsible for a series of murders in Pittston climaxed last night by the double slaying of Alex Campbell and Pete Saudargas, the "save the union" committee of the United Mine Workers in a statement today called upon the region to avenge the unionists "by defeating these bloody reactionists."

With the entire region fear-stricken lest last night's murders lead to further reprisals and more deaths, the committee threw itself into the controversy which has resulted in the deaths of four leaders in recent weeks.

"Avenge Campbell, Saudargas, Thomas Lillis and Sam Grecio (all victims of gunmen) by defeating these bloody reactionists, freeing Sam Bonita and building the United Mine Workers into an unbeatable weapon," the statement continued. Bonita is held on a murder charge in the death of Frank Agati, leader of another wing of the union factions.

"No one will now deny there exists a conspiracy to murder all leaders of those opposed to the contractors' machine and exterminate all miners who dare challenge the bloody rule of operators and contractor," the statement read.

RAISE DEFENSE FUND

The "save the union" committee is a wing of the union which had been opposed to the Agati-Cappelini group. Bonita was alleged to have killed Agati while they were in conference over a dispute in a Pittston local of the union. A large fund is being raised to defend Bonita, who goes on trial next month.

The committee called a series of mass meetings, to be held in Wilkes-Barre, Pittston, Luzerne, Old Forge, Jessup, Oliphant and other coal towns, to protest against what it terms "a conspiracy to murder all opposition to the operators."

The statement calls on authorities to release Bonita, Adam Moleski and Steve Mendola, the latter two also held in the Agati murder.

Imported gunmen were believed to have been the slayers of the two mine union officials last night. A closed car, without license plates, sped up to the car in which Campbell and Saudargas were seated after a conference, and pumped a deadly spray of bullets into the two men's bodies with pumpguns and revolvers. Twenty bullets were found in each body. The car was later found in Moosic, near Scranton.

The two men were killed shortly after a conference with members of the District Attorney's staff and county detectives. Chief County Detective Richard Powell rode part of the way home with them, and the men stopped at the detective's home to let him out of the car before they headed for Campbell's home, near which they were overtaken by the gunmen's car.

Pittston is confident that other deaths will follow—for they know the mine feud code—an eye for an eye—a life for a life.

Meanwhile details of state police combed the northern section of the county and were reported to have taken four suspects into custody.

Open New Bridge on Mar. 15

Opening of the Liberty Bridge to vehicular and pedestrian traffic was tentatively set by the county commissioners today for March 15.

The span, finest and most expensive to be constructed by the county, cost $2,500,000. It forms a direct connecting link with the Liberty tubes. The opening of the bridge will aid in relieving the traffic situation between downtown district to the South Hills.

Director Norman F. Brown, County Department of Public Works, notified the commissioners today that handrailings, lights and other minor work would be about completed by the middle of next month and that the bridge could be opened.

A demonstration, eclipsing all other ceremonies to be held by county officials in opening a bridge, is being arranged.

Children Grazed -:- As Bomb -:- Showers Elizabeth

FELT BLAST

James Lynch, aged 10, and Houston McNicols, aged 13, were thrown from their beds by the force of the explosion, which rocked Elizabeth, destroying one building and damaging a dozen others. Both boys reside above the Olympia restaurant, half a square from the blast.

SHOWERED

Carrie Smith, Jane Smith, Ruth Cole, Dorothy Cole and Margaret Sprents were showered with glass from shattered windows. The broken panes fell on the bed clothing beneath which they were sleeping and none of them were injured. Residing on Market street, near Third street, they were all awakened by the explosion, but were forced to remain indoors until daynight. Mrs. Mary Riley, telephone operator at the State Bank, opposite the bombed building, was injured when the blast buried her from a chair.

FRIGHTENED

Marjorie Lynch, 7, James' sister, was badly frightened by the loud roar of the explosion and refused to leave the house when Jimmy went out to see what had happened.

JEANNE CHEATS DEATH

JEANNE DURAND

Jeanne Durand, 18, stunt aviatrix, missed death by inches yesterday when, as she attempted to set a world's parachute jump record at St. Petersburg, Fla., her straps became entangled in the plane's undercarriage. The mishap occurred 15,000 feet in the air. Miss Durand succeeded in pulling herself up to the undercarriage. When her pilot landed, she was found beneath the plane in a faint. At the hospital, physicians said her only injury was a bruised left arm. She will try again Sunday and, she says, will "break the record or her neck."

CLUE HINTS LOST FLIERS DROWNED

FISHERMAN HEARD BAD MOTOR

NORFOLK, Va., Feb. 29.—(AP.)—An airplane with a missing engine, flying at a very low altitude, was heard over Horn Harbor in Chesapeake Bay about 2:30 a. m. Monday, navy officials searching for Commander Elysson and two companions, missing in an airplane more than two days, were informed today by Irvine Hudgins, a fisherman.

Then the plane's motor picked up and the aircraft headed northward across the mouth of the harbor, Hudgins reported. Suddenly, he said the droning of the motor seemed to stop. He heard nothing more.

This is the first definite information received by naval officials to bear out their belief that the plane might have fallen into the water.

Com. Ellyson, with Lieut. Com. Hugo Schmidt and Lieut. Roger Ramsehausen took off Sunday night from the airplane carrier Lexington at Hampton Roads to fly to Annapolis, only 140 miles away. They vanished during a flight that should not have taken more than two hours. Ellyson was rushing to the sick bed of his 12-year-old daughter.

Half a hundred Army and Navy planes and dirigibles are pressing the search. So far not a trace has been found. Admiral Charles F. Hughes, chief of naval operations, has offered a reward of $100 for discovery of the plane or bodies.

The point at which Hudgins thinks he last heard the plane motor is about three miles from where yesterday a large oil "slick" was discovered on the surface of the water. The bottom was dragged without success for the plane which the "slick" indicated might lie submerged with its three passengers strapped to their seats.

TECHNICAL LOOPHOLE FOUND

Liquor charges against more than 200 officers and employes of Elk and Eagle lodges in the Pittsburgh district and other parts of the state are to be quashed because of technical illegality in search and seizure warrants used in raids by prohibition agents on club rooms of the lodges where liquors were seized.

This became known when Ralph H. Smith, assistant United States District Attorney, advised the United States commissioner, before whom the charges are pending, that the district attorney's office recommends the dismissal of all the cases.

The search and seizure warrants were directed to W. B. Murray, assistant prohibition administrator, or "his deputies"—and the deputies,

NEW RELIEF PLEA MADE FOR MINERS

first-inspection tour of the Pennsylvania fields.

What form this legislation will take, however, presented a serious problem because it is admitted the causes of the strike are largely economic in character, being due in large part to an oversupply of miners and overproduction of coal.

FOR FEDERAL CONTROL

Several members, including Senator Wheeler (D.), of Montana, may sponsor legislation to nationalize the mines but it was conceded such a policy will gain little support in the present Congress. An attempt will be made to effect a compromise on some sort of Federal regulation.

Members of the special committee, including Chairman Gooding (R.), of Iowa, were emphatic in their condemnation of the manner in which injunctions are being used to hamper the striking miners in the Pittsburgh district and elsewhere. Court restrictions of that type lead only to Bolshevism, Gooding said.

The special sub-committee is preparing today to file its report with the full committee Thursday or Friday. Chairman Gooding of the sub-committee said the report would be delivered in verbal form, following which a definite announcement is expected to be forthcoming regarding plans of the committee for beginning the formal investigation of the strike, as proposed in the resolution by Senator Johnson of California.

In his appeal for aid to the striking miners, President Green said:

"The cold winter months have brought intense suffering and privation to the thousands of miners who are still on strike and their families dependent upon them in Central and Western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Northern West Virginia and elsewhere.

"The condition is pitiable and their needs for relief and assistance have greatly increased.

"The response to the appeal to the membership of organized labor and their friends, for money, clothing, food and supplies, issued by the executive council of the American Federation of Labor, on November 19, has been most generous and gratifying.

"Organized labor answered this call promptly. They gave quickly and they have continued to give money, clothing, food, shoes and supplies.

"Many thousands of dollars have been contributed and many boxes of clothing and supplies have been shipped and distributed among the striking miners and their families, but the task is great. Notwithstanding all that has been done by organized labor and other sympathetic groups which have rendered great assistance the amount of help extended is insufficient to meet the most urgent cases of suffering and distress.

SUFFERING IN BARRACKS

"For this reason we are again appealing to the great heart of labor. Ten months of idleness, extending into the rigors of midwinter, have caused unspeakable misery and woe. The cruelty and heartlessness of many of the mining corporations have been reflected in the eviction of families from their homes. As a result temporary barracks have been built by the miners' organization for the care and accommodation of the families who had their furniture and belongings thrown out of the houses into the streets, roads and highways.

"This situation became so acute that the attention of the Congress of the United States was specifically directed to it. As a result the Senate of the United States ordered an investigation and said investigation is now being made by a committee of United States senators. We will all await the result of this investigation with very great interest.

"In the meantime help to the miners on strike and their families dependent upon them must be forthcoming. For this reason we again appeal to the membership of organized labor and their friends for continued relief for the striking mine workers and those dependent upon them. We express the hope that those who have made liberal contributions may find it possible to contribute more and those who have not found it possible to give may now respond in a most wholehearted and generous way."

BOMB HALL OF MINERS

of Joseph Tortoice, the West Penn Power Company building, the Herron & Weiss department store, the Atlantic and Pacific chain store, the Frank Victor tailor shop, a restaurant and a shoe shop owned by James Bruno; the restaurant of Petro Polleti, the Sadler Automobile Accessory Company and the State Bank of Elizabeth.

More than a score of persons, the members of nine families residing over the stores in Market street, were thrown from their beds and littered with plaster and broken glass. Debris covered the beds in several houses. McCowan Lynch and his wife and three children, living over the Olympic Restaurant, ran to the street when the windows were blown into the bedrooms. Josiah Simpson, his wife and three children living over the Atlantic and Pacific store, also were forced out.

The force of the explosion blew Mrs. Mary Riley, 28, night operator at the telephone exchange in the bank building, from her switchboard. She returned to the board and called J. Will Martin, an undertaker, who in turn called Chief of Police James P. Patton. A score of men under the direction of Patton searched the debris for bodies.

The explosion was heard in Clairton and West Newton and in Uniontown, six miles away. Corp. F. J. Hanley and Private George Reeber, of the state police detail at Uniontown, were called and are helping the borough police to guard buildings and in searching for the bombers.

A score of guests in the old Elizabeth Hotel, adjoining the building in which the bomb was placed, were hurled to the floor. The building was not damaged. Windows were broken in stores and houses for a distance of five blocks along Market street and in Second and Third streets.

who actually served them, were not named.

Such execution was declared illegal and the evidence was ordered suppressed by Judge R. M. Gibson in deciding the legality of the warrants executed in raids at the Coraopolis Elks and Pitcairn Eagles clubs, on motion for the suppression of evidence made by Attorneys J. Howard Devlin and Edward Coll, representing the Pitcairn Eagles and Attorney W. Heber Dithrich, in behalf of the Coraopolis Elks.

Records of the raids made on 32 Eagle lodges and 20 Elk lodges disclosed that all the search warrants were directed to Murray, then connected with the Pittsburgh office, but had been executed by others, who made the returns to the court. In recommending the dismissal of the charges Attorney Smith based his action on the court's ruling suppressing evidence because of the illegal execution of the search warrants.

Your Teeth More Lovely Than You Think

This simple test is certain to surprise you

STUDY attractive people, men or women. Note the tremendous part gleaming, white teeth play. Don't believe your teeth are naturally dull, "off color." You can disprove that in a surprisingly short time.

Modern science has found a new way in tooth and gum care. A way different from any you have ever known.

Run your tongue across your teeth, and you will feel a film, a viscous coat that covers them.

That film is an enemy to your teeth—and your gums. It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. It absorbs discolorations and gives your teeth that cloudy, "off-color" look. Germs by the millions breed in it and lay your teeth open to decay. And they, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea and gum disorders.

Old-time methods fail in successfully combating film. That's why your teeth remain dull and unattractive.

Now, in a new-type dentifrice called Pepsodent, dental science has provided effective combatants. Their action is to curdle the film and remove it. Pepsodent also firms the gums.

Then the lovely, gleaming teeth you see will amaze you. That's where ordinary methods fail. Combat the film twice daily this scientific way.

JUMPS MURDER BOND; INNOCENT

ROCKFORD, Ill., Feb. 29.—(AP.)—Henry Olson, wherever you are, read this:

Convicted of slaying Floyd Stotler, oil station attendant, and sentenced to life imprisonment, you jumped your appeal bond last Thursday, didn't you? With your young wife you drove away, and your $10,000 bond, on which Judge Fisher had allowed you your freedom pending arguments for a new trial, was declared forfeited.

WON'T ENFORCE SENTENCE

But you may come back now, Henry Olson! That life sentence, though it still stands over you, is not likely to be enforced.

Do you know George Bliss and Morris Mahan? They are only 17 years old—nine years younger than you. They are under arrest, Henry Olson, and the police say they have confessed they were the ones who held up the filling station last September and shot down Stotler when he resisted.

Mahan told police, they said, that Bliss fired the fatal shot. Bliss followed Mahan's confession with one of his own, and the police found the boys' stories were substantiated by much of the evidence used at your two trials; the first trial when the jury could not agree that you were guilty, and the second, at which you were convicted.

WOMAN BARES TRUTHS

You should come home, Henry Olson, and give personal thanks to your attorney, H. H. North, whose certainty of your innocence led to the uncovering of evidence which resulted in the Mahan and Bliss arrests yesterday. North heard rumors of a woman who had dropped remarks indicating that you were innocent. The woman was questioned. She told police that Mahan had told her he took part in the holdup.

You recall that your attorney spent nearly two days during the last trial questioning Orville Stotler, aged father of the slain man, who witnessed the tragedy at the filling station. Orville Stotler identified you as one of the holdup men, but North, through his long questioning, uncovered points which convinced him that a mistake was being made.

They are searching for you today, Henry Olson, and your attorney is even more interested in finding you than the police.

You think it is too good to be true? You think such things happen only in novels? You are wrong. It is true. Come home, Henry Olson, and see.

Young actress discovers how to be on the job every day

Broadway Favorite

SHE USED to lose one night at least every month from her work. Valuable time that lost money for the show.

URGE QUICK PASSAGE OF "DOPE" FARM BILL

HELD NECESSITY, KEY TO PUZZLE

By WINIFRED BLACK.

What about the new plan for taking drug addicts out of the Federal prisons and putting them into Federal farms where they can be nursed and taken care of and given a chance to get over the dreadful disease of addiction—and kept where they will not make more addicts?

The Porter bill for the addict farms will come up for discussion in the congressional committee the first week in March.

WINIFRED BLACK

Good news!

That discussion ought not to take very long. The whole idea is simple and it's practical and it answers many important questions and answers them in what appears to be a good sane, practical way.

It won't cost any extra money.

The Federal prisons must be relieved of the crowding anyhow.

Two new prisons of some sort must be built immediately.

Why not simplify the whole situation by making these new institutions addict farms, and thus take all the addicts out of the Federal prisons—and keep them out?

Prison Dope Quiz On.

Out in Seattle, at this very hour, they are investigating a reiterated story that the prisoners at McNeal's Island get "dope" right in prison and that the trusties sell it to them.

Men go into prison without the habit, says common report and come out addicts of the worst sort.

There's nothing new in that statement. Every student of criminology in America will tell you the same thing.

Everyone who knows anything at all about the narcotic evil, knows that narcotics have a strange, mysterious way of getting into prison.

Sometimes it comes in through the mails. An addict soaks a paper in a strong solution of morphine, drys the paper, writes a letter on it and when the prisoner gets that letter, he soaks it again—and gets his morphine.

Maybe he uses it all himself. Maybe he sells some of it to his cell mate. Anyhow, he gets it.

Novel Smuggling Methods

Some prisoners soak their cloth ing in a strong solution of morphine, take the clothing into the prison dry, soak it again, and get the "dope" that way.

Sometime it comes in a basket of fruit. Bananas are good "dope" carriers, and so are apples. Nuts are opened, filled with "dope," pasted together again and sent into prison.

Grapes are sometimes shot full of morphine, or heroin or cocaine.

Sometimes narcotics are sent in by way of cake and pie, and even in one recent instance, in a loaf of real home-made bread.

Sometimes the trusties get the "dope" and peddle it to the prisoners.

It has always been whispered that you could get "dope" in the Atlanta Federal prison a good deal easier than you could get it on the outside.

Leavenworth—Alcitraz Island—any experienced addict will smile if you pretend to believe that either of these prisons is free from "dope" and the "dope" peddler.

Take these addicts out of the Federal prison and you'll have room for the convicts who are not addicts.

QUICK PASSAGE OF 'DOPE' FARM BILL URGED

and an addict farm won't cost as much as a Federal prison at that.

Dope Breeds Felons.

"Dope" makes criminals. Why not let this new addict farm take care of the convicts that "dope" makes?

Why not begin to reduce the market for "dope?"

If the market is bad, the production will drop.

How are you going to get the "dope" peddlers off the street, if you have no real place to put them—and keep them?

Why not send the "dope" peddler to an addict farm? Get him off the streets and keep him off. Remove him as a source of contagion, once and for all.

A "dope" addict cannot be properly taken care of in a jail or any ordinary prison.

There is no room for him and there is no time for him in any such place.

A narcotic slave who is trying to get away from "dope" needs skillful care and constant attention. He suffers the most hideous torture and the ordinary prison doctor has neither the time nor the special skill to treat him as he should be treated.

Need Humane Care.

These people need humane and intelligent care. Where can they get it, except in an institution especially designed for them?

They know what the drug danger is up in Canada and they are beginning to treat it in just exactly this sensible, practical way.

Here's what the Canadian Department of Health thinks about the whole terrible menace of narcotic addiction.

Way back in 1924 the department of health wrote this letter to the various provincial governments:

"It is a fact that the use of opium and other habit-forming drugs, more particularly heroin, morphine and cocaine appears to be on the increase.

"There's hardly a town or village of any size in Canada which has not within its midst a number of drug habitues.

"In years gone by, it was the general impression that the drug traffic and drug addicts were confined particularly to the larger centers.

"The great need at the present time is provision for institutional treatment of these addicts.

Addicts Breed Addicts.

"Drug addicts breed drug addicts.

"The more you have in any community, unless some effort is made to take a cure (at present either in the jails or asylum), the more you will have.

"The courts in many places are fairly clogged with drug cases, and the magistrates are at a loss to know how best to deal with them.

"Jails and asylums are not proper places to treat these people and unless, and until such time as the provinces and municipalities provide institutional treatment for these poor unfortunates, the drug problem will grow more acute and the narcotic habit will increase."

Straight talk—straight from the shoulder.

Are we going to let Canada get ahead of us in the practical meeting of a practical emergency of such tremendous importance?

Or shall we study this question earnestly, intelligently, and with an open mind—and help Representative Porter pass the Narcotic Farms Addict Bill—and start to do something practical for our own people in our own country just as soon as we possibly can.

PITTSBURGHER SUED BY U. S.

A statement of claim was filed yesterday by the government in the Federal District Court against H. Louis Braunstein of Pittsburgh, in which the government seeks to recover from Braunstein, $2,732.33, with interest, because of alleged failure of the former firm of Braunstein and Sons, Minneapolis, Minn., to consummate a contract for the purchase of 33,600 pairs of olive drab breeches, reclaimed from surplus material of the War Department.

Braunstein was said to be one of the surviving members of the firm, which, according to the statement of claim, contracted December 14, 1920 for the purchase of 33,600 pairs of breeches, but after taking 16,800 pairs for $3,100, failed to take the balance. The government, represented by Assistant United States District Attorney W. J. Aiken, sets forth in the bill of claim that the balance of breeches were disposed of under the contract price, resulting in a loss of the amount claimed.

THE PITTSBURGH SUN-TELEGRAPH

Pola Negri Making Last Film For Paramount—Negotiating For Screen Rights to "Nana"

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS,

Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 29.

SIX years ago, Adolph Zukor started a precedent. He brought Pola Negri, star of the U. F. A. Company, to this country at a salary never dreamed of in Germany. She was the first of the foreign players. Miss Negri had already paved the way for her reception in America by her performance of Madame DuBarry in "Passion" and in "Carmen." Now Miss Negri is making her last picture for Famous, and her next move means a goodby to program pictures.

She goes to New York as soon as she is through at Famous Players-Lasky to talk business with a representative of an English producing company and with one of our American producers as well. Whether she goes abroad to make pictures or whether she stays here will make no difference to Miss Negri's plans. She is determined to get away from program pictures.

So that there may be the right vehicle at hand her representative in Paris is negotiating for the film rights to Emile Zola's "Nana" and for the privilege of bringing Sardou's "Fedora" to the screen. One of these will be her first story under the new contract. Miss Negri and Prince M'Divani sail for Europe in May to spend two months at Miss Negri's chateau in Versailles with her mother.

Lady Hamilton has found her Lord Nelson. That helps considerably for how could "The Divine Lady" be filmed without milady's best boy friend. Victor Varconi has been borrowed from the De Mille studios to play England's famous Naval hero. I am sure Corinne Griffith, who will create the beauteous Lady Hamilton for the screen, must be pleased with her Lord Nelson. Mr. Varconi is always of romantic interest on the screen. Negotiations are pending with Lionel Barrymore for one of the other important roles in "The Divine Lady." My hat is off to the older of the Barrymores after his performance in "Sadie Thompson." He is so good you even forgive changing Reverend Davidson's name to Oliver Hamilton, reformer.

"Ladies Prefer Bonds" is the somewhat startling title of the next Conrad Nagle-May McAvoy picture. The title was probably suggested by "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," the Anita Loos and John Emerson story.

Monte Blue writes to friends in Hollywood from Papeete in the South Seas that he has made a great hit with the natives. Two babies have already been named for him, but says Monte: "They don't spell my name the way I do. They are calling the kids 'Monti Blu.'" Monte, who joined a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer expedition to make "Under Southern Skies," based on a Frederick O'Brien story, admits his native Hollywood will look pretty good to him.

There is a rumor that Adolphe Menjou will listen to France's beguiling voice. His contract with Paramount expires this spring and there is a possibility that he will do his picture-making elsewhere. He sails in May on a honeymoon trip and a little bird tells me a part of his vacation on the other side will be spent making a big special for France.

ALL-STAR CAST IS COMING

"Diplomacy", Victorien Sardou's drawing-room melodrama, which has been revived by George C. Tyler, will be at the Nixon for a week, opening Monday evening, March 5.

In the cast are Margaret Anglin, Frances Starr, William Faversham, Jacob Ben-Ami, Helen Gahagan, Charles Coburn, Rollo Peters, Cecilia (Cissie) Loftus, Tyrone Power, Georgette Cohan, Georges Renavent, Antony Holles and Ralph Bunker. Seats will go on sale Thursday morning.

"The Letter," W. Somerset Maugham's drama in which the emotional star, Katharine Cornell, comes to the Alvin Theater next Monday night for the week, and for which attraction the sale of seats will begin tomorrow was staged by Gutherie McClintic, managing director of the Actor's Theater.

Some of the lawlessness of New York's night life is portrayed in detail in "Broadway," drama of the cabarets now in the Pitt. A matinee performance of "Broadway" will be given tomorrow.

Vanessi, dancer, will share headline honors in the Davis next week. On the screen will be Will Rogers in "A Texas Steer."

DRAGUN, BARITONE, TO SING HERE FRIDAY

Dragun, Jugoslav baritone, will make his debut appearance in Pittsburgh Friday evening, March 2, in Carnegie Music Hall in the closing number of the Borta deluxe concert series. He has toured in concert work in Europe. Mr. Dragun will be assisted by Vladimir Resnikoff, Russian violinist.

LOWELL SHERMAN CAST IN "THE WHIP"

The only player cast to date for "The Whip," a forthcoming First National picture, is Lowell Sherman. The others in the cast of this film version of the Drury Lane melodrama, will be announced shortly. John Francis Dillon will direct this picture.

Dramatic

KATHERINE CORNELL

Miss Cornell is started in "The Letter," dramatic play by W. Somerset Maugham, which will be the attraction in the Alvin next week.

Frenchmen Given Soldier Roles In Pictures

French men able to carry rifles have been much in demand for Colleen Moore's new First National starring picture, "Lilac Time." As George Fitzmaurice, directing this romantic film, declares:

"A real Frenchman is the only man who can be convincing in the uniform of a poilu."

And Fitzmaurice, having lived much of his life in France, knows whereof he speaks.

The First National casting office spent weeks enrolling Frenchmen to "carry arms" in the military scenes of "Lilac Time," which John McCormick is producing for First National Pictures. In the "army" thus gathered are many men who took part in the great conflict, including officers and enlisted men, a good number of whom have been decorated for bravery on the field of battle.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Wearied by Social Activities, Leaders Vary Program by Turning to Philanthropic Work

ALL work makes Jack a dull boy, according to the old rhyme. And all play makes a bored, dissatisfied one, many a society woman would add. The debutante, after the years spent with governesses and the years devoted to finishing school, enjoys every party of her first season out. By the end of her second season, however, the whirl of gaiety begins to lose its attraction, and she wishes to live for others as well as for herself. Since she and the older society women have more leisure and means than their poorer sisters, they usually turn to philanthropy.

The Pittsburgh society women do a great deal of philanthropic work. One of the most notable groups devoting itself to such endeavors is the Federation of Girls' School Societies which supports a home at Harmarville for Convalescent Women and Babies. This home has become quite overcrowded. So at a meeting of the executive board of the society, held yesterday in the Woman's City Club, William Penn Hotel, plans were made for adding a new wing to the present building to be used for mothers and babies. The Farmington Society is going to sponsor this building plan, I understand. Plans have not yet been completed, but ground will be broken, it is expected, in the spring. Of course you know that Mrs. Ambrose Nevin Diehl is president of the Federation, and that Mrs. Frederick G. Blackburn is president of the Farmington Society of Pittsburgh.

Pittsburgh society women are very generous, too, with their patronage of the arts. A group of matrons will sponsor a concert to be given by the Yost String Quartet on the evening of March 17 in the Hotel Schenley. Norman Frauenheim, pianist, will join the quartet on that night—his first American appearance since his return from the continent. You know, I'm sure, that his last appearance was before Her Royal Highness the Infanta Isabella, aunt of the King of Spain, in her palace in Madrid.

Those who are sponsoring the concert are such well-known society women as Mrs. Oliver S. Hershman, president of the advisory board of the Yost String Quartet; Mrs. D. M. Clemson, Mrs. William Thaw, Jr., Mrs. A. A. Germain, Mrs. James Edward Lewis, Mrs. Edward Frauenheim, Mrs. J. Fred Haworth, Mrs. William Benswanger, Miss Helen Rauh, Mrs. Ambrose Nevin Diehl, Mrs. Harry Wherrett, Mrs. John Stevenson Patterson and Mrs. Harold B. Hershman.

The advisory board, by the way, is planning something quite new for next year, I have heard. It is planning to sponsor a season of Sunday afternoon salons in the ballroom of the Hotel Schenley. Chamber music, with assisting artists, will be heard. There is a certain air of intimacy about chamber music, I have always thought. The membership for these concerts, I hear, is to be limited.

While many a society woman has already fled to the South to escape harsh winter and while many others have been packing their trunks with summery and sports things in preparation for such a journey, one society girl has been revelling in the winter sports at Lake Placid. Suzanne Trimble returned Monday night from this spot regarded with favor by lovers of tobogganning. Suzanne, the daughter of the Harcourt Newell Trimbles of Beechwood boulevard, came out, as you know, during the season just ended.

Children are not the only ones who have birthday parties nowadays. The "grown-ups" have decided to renew the old custom of celebrating every birthday, a rather pleasant thing to do, don't you think? The most recent birthday party I've heard of is that which Mrs. Edward T. Stotesburg of Philadelphia gave Monday afternoon at Palm Beach for her husband. The "party" was in the form of a reception and tea at the Stotesbury's Ocean boulevard home, "El Mirasol."

Among the guests from Pittsburgh, I hear, were Eben M. Byers, Mrs. W. Harry Brown, the James Francis Burkes, the junior Robert Carsons, the Alfred G. Kays, Mrs. Alexander Laughlin, Thomas Melon, Mrs. Henry R. Rea, Henry Oliver Rea and Richard King Mellon.

Marie McBride, a debutante of this year, is as active in southern gaities as she was earlier in the season in Pittsburgh social life. She was among the guests of the Horace Wilson Bennets, of Denver, at the dinner-dance of the Everglades Club Monday night. The honor guests were the daughters of the hosts, Mrs. Clarence Cobb and Mrs. Charles Crocker.

Miss Beatrice Hawkins, of Merewood avenue, is in New York. Another Pittsburgh woman paying a visit to Gotham is Mrs. David McG. Witherow.

The marriage of Miss Ruth Shipp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Shipp, of Tennessee avenue, Dormont, to Thomas Edward Baum, of Warren, O., was solemnized Saturday at 7:30 o'clock in the Dormont Presbyterian Church by the Rev. Dr. U. Franklin Smiley. The bride wore white georgette over satin, and her veil of rose point lace and net was caught with orange blossoms and pearls. She carried sweetheart roses, orchids and white lilacs showered with lilies of the valley. Her sister, Mrs. Hazel M. Beitler, as matron of honor, appeared in shell pink taffeta and carried sweetpeas and snapdragon. Miss Margaret Delane, and Miss Grace Kopp were bridesmaids, wearing yellow and orchid taffeta and carrying Dresden bouquets. Jesse Baum was his brother's best man and the ushers included F. H. Beitler and John Metro. Miss Beth Schmid sang. Mr. and Mrs. Baum are taking an eastern trip and after March 10 will be at home in Carrick.

Beta Theta chapter of the Phi Mu fraternity, University of Pittsburgh, will hold a founders' day luncheon Saturda, in the Fort Pitt Hotel in celebration of the seventy-sixth anniversary of the founding of the fraternity at Wesleyan College, Macon, Ga. The fraternity maintains the Phi Mu Healthmobile which operates in the mountains of Georgia, giving medical aid to the poor. Miss Sara E. Long is president of the local chapter and Mrs. Thomas M. Felton, of the alumnae chapter, is manager of the Beta Province convention to be held here in June.

The wedding of Miss Rosella Cahen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. N. Cahen, of Coraopolis, and David Whitman will take place in the Hotel Schenley at 5 o'clock the afternoon of March 8. Miss Vivian Cahen will be her sister's maid of honor and Mrs. Emanuel Roman, of New Castle, will be matron of honor. The bridesmaids will be Miss Sylvia Goldman, of Scottdale; Miss Belle Whitman, Miss Evelyn Harris and Miss Anne Silverstein. Leonard Cahen will be best man and the ushers are to include Alfred Knoff, of Cleveland; Julius Harris, Leonard Shapiro and Phillip Whitman, of Pittsburgh. A dinner for the families will follow the ceremony and a reception, for which cards have been issued, will be held from 9 to 11 o'clock.

for flavoring of every morsel in your dish of macaroni

When you want more delicious macaroni — every morsel full flavored — it's time to turn to Pabst-ett, more than cheese.

Pabst-ett has a lower melting temperature than cheese. When heated it dissolves and the wonderful Pabst-ett flavor spreads throughout the dish. Pabst-ett never becomes lumpy or stringy in cooked foods. From the beautiful, golden crust to the bottom of the dish there's new delight in Pabst-ett macaroni.

Not Successfully Imitated

Pabst-ett is the only dairy product made by the Pabst Process to retain all the elements of milk—the milk sugar, milk proteins, milk minerals, vitamins, calcium—that are lost in cheese making. It has not been successfully imitated in flavor or texture.

With all the elements of milk, Pabst-ett is a true health-food that young children, adults, elderly persons should eat regularly. It is as digestible as milk, and more nourishing.

Order Pabst-ett by name from your grocer to get the product that's more than cheese.

Lesson Eleven

By HELEN ROWLAND

BLONDINING YOUR TEMPERAMENT

"BRUNETTES are more emotional than blondes," declares a psychologist.

And THAT explains why blondes are preferred by a lot of gentlemen!

The one thing that no man can stand, is to be "emoted" over. A blonde is easy on the nerves and soothing to the spirit. Brunettes are stimulating—but blondes are COMFORTABLE!

HELEN ROWLAND

It is the volcanic quality of the brunette nature, which MUST erupt now and then, that frightens a man.

It is not the yellow hair, but the purring, kitten-like blonde temperament that appeals to men. Lots of men may admire flashing dark eyes and midnight hair. But if a brunette wants to be LOVED, she must blondine her "temperament" down to the roots.

The three things a man values most in this world are his peace of mind, his freedom and his comfort!

A man who is married to a brunette temperament never knows, when he comes home evenings, whether he is going to be met with a flaming kiss, a shower of tears or a cold blast of reproach. But a blonde is always like nice May weather—just comfortably tepid.

Blondes are tender and cool-headed; brunettes are intense and warm-hearted. Blondes like to pet and be petted; brunettes want to adore and be adored.

A brunette wants to be not only the leading lady in a man's life, but the whole ensemble; to devour him with attentions, devotion and coddling. But a blonde is content to let George do most of the loving.

A brunette is high-strung, sensitive and sometimes jealous. But, as long as a blonde is made comfortable, she prefers to shut her eyes and go on purring. The blonde temperament is the placid temperament of the pet cat, which accepts with perfect equanimity all the cream and the petting, never cries for "more love," and never embarrasses a man by returning his affection with a deluge of emotion. Some brunettes are born with a blonde temperament—but no blonde was ever born with a brunette temperament.

A brunette loves to dramatize things and is always staging a scene; and a man will run from a scene as a cat runs from a pail of water. But a blonde can curl up and BE STILL!

All the women of history, who have been deserted or betrayed by men, have been either brunettes or red-headed, from Cleopatra and Salome, down. But Helen of Troy must have been a blonde. For no matter what a blonde may DO, the men she has deceived are always delighted to have her around, again.

Fay King Wants Word "Housewife" Improved

By FAY KING

NEWSPAPERS often assign reporters to question the public about some timely question.

The reporters ask both men and women at random. In printing these opinions a small picture is published with the name, address and occupation of the one who has answered.

Friends and neighbors as often see a picture of Mrs. Somebody they know, listed a "singer," an "artist," a "writer," a "pianiste," etc.

Knowing that she is always busy in her pretty little home, they are a little astonished, and they are apt to say:

"Does singing lullabies to babies list one as a 'singer'? Is pedaling the player piano enough to make one a pianist?" All she ever 'writes' is postal cards! Of course, one is 'in pictures' when one has a photograph taken occasionally. Well, I do suppose painting lamp shades and sofa cushions makes one 'an artist'!"

Wait! These charming married women are not pretending to be what they are not! They wouldn't change their homes, husbands and kiddies for the greatest success in any one of these careers at its best.

The truth of the matter is that they are dead against being listed as "HOUSEWIFE"!

And I don't blame them!

It's an ugly title.

A married woman's name is enough. But unfortunately there are still many legal and civil documents which call for that added description "Housewife."

It seems to me time that a better sounding title might be applied to a woman whose career in the home is the most splendid and important career that a woman can choose.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

by Royal S. Copeland M.D.

U.S. Senator from New York

Food Good for Senators Is Good for All

RECENTLY I was much amused by a letter sent to each member of the United States Senate by Miss Mary A. Lindsley, director of the Grace Dodge Hotel in Washington.

It was headed "Dietary Don'ts for Statesmen."

In this letter it was said:

"Senators are regarded as human beings. Notwithstanding party symbols, therefore, you must dine as a member of the human family. No Republican eats like an elephant, I hope, nor do Democrats dine like donkeys. And though one may hide one's head in the sand during passing political storms, that doesn't make one an ostrich."

DR. COPELAND

Then follows a list of "Dietary Don'ts for Statesmen." The Senator is admonished: "If you care for a good constitution—and you have taken an oath to defend the Constitution—it is to be hoped you will do what you can to observe them."

These rules are so good I want you to read them. They will help to keep you well, just as they will help to keep the Senators well if they observe them—which I fear they will not. Here are the rules:

1. Don't start a long speech immediately after eating. Wait an hour. It will be a better speech.

2. Don't bolt your meals. It doesn't pay. Undigested food may mean undigested legislation.

3. Don't eat meat more than once a day. Eat fish, lamb and chicken oftener than beef and pork.

4. Don't eat excessively of starchy or acid-forming foods, such as pastry and puddings.

5. Don't fail to eat fresh vegetables with your heavy meal of the day—and fruit for breakfast and luncheon.

6. Don't drink coffee, tea or other stimulants as a substitute for nourishing food, or to "keep going."

7. Don't starve. Don't "stuff." One is as bad as the other in its physical effect. Eat simply and moderately.

8. Don't overload your stomach with aristocratic foods. A democratic diet is safest, even for a Republican.

9. Don't imagine a daily ride or round of golf will offset the results of improper eating. It won't.

10. Don't expect to stay in the Senate unless you safeguard your health. Physical and political virility are allied.

Why not apply these rules to your own manner of eating? Whether you are statesman, doctor, lawyer, preacher, banker, barber, manicurist or stenographer, they are good rules. Their observance will prolong the life of anyone who follows them.

Keeping Cut Flowers

If, as sometimes happens, it is particularly desired to keep cut flowers for some little time before use they should be put, dry, between layers of wadding in a perfectly dry and airtight drawer, or, better still, a small zinc-lined box. In this way they will keep perfectly fresh for an astonishing time. For the decoration of churches, for instance, when prices rush up at festivals, suitable flowers can be secured well before and kept in this way.

"GAVE ME ALMOST INSTANT RELIEF"

North Side Lady Tells How Ten Herbs Ended All Her Health Troubles.

"I was in very poor health—all run-down in every way—but Ten Herbs gave me almost instant relief," was the statement of Mrs. Katherine Bottles, popular and well-known lady, living at 1244 Rush Street, North Side, Pittsburgh, to the Ten Herbs Man, who is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue.

MRS. KATHERINE BOTTLES

Pittsburgh, where he is daily demonstrating this great natural medicine. "I was so badly constipated that I had to keep taking laxatives, but instead of doing me any permanent good, they seemed to make me worse," Mrs. Bottles continued. "Then my stomach became so disordered that I was hardly able to eat anything. Sometimes just the smell of food would nauseate me. What little food I ate would lie in a hard lump in my stomach, and would sour and cause terrible indigestion and gas pains. I was continually troubled with pains in my back and side.

"Ten Herbs made an immense change in my condition, and my health is better now than in years. My stomach and kidneys seem to have been thoroughly cleansed of all waste matter and impurities that were causing me so much trouble. I can enjoy a hearty meal without fear of indigestion. Gas spells don't bother me any more, and my bowels have been regulated. I am regaining lost strength and vitality, and even my complexion has improved. Ten Herbs proved so satisfactory in every respect that I can conscientiously recommend it to the public."

Many others in this section are making similar claims for Ten Herbs, the purely herbal compound. They say it gives prompt and surprising results in relieving disorders of the stomach and liver. It also benefits the kidneys, regulates the bowels, and has a cleansing, soothing, correcting effect on the system in general. Ten Herbs has helped others and why not you?

The Ten Herbs Man is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily meeting the public and explaining the merits of this medicine. Free sample given.

Hemorrhoids Disappear

All Pile Misery Banished Without Cutting or Salves.

External treatments seldom banish Piles for the very good reason that the cause is inside—bad circulation in affected parts, veins are flabby and bowel walls weakened.

To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send fresh, healthy blood to the raw, sensitive membranes. Internal treatment is one safe method. Ointments and other external treatments can't give lasting relief.

J. S. Leonhardt, M. D., a specialist, set at work some years ago to find a real internal remedy for piles. He succeeded. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and it has proven successful in thousands of cases—so successful that now HEM-ROID is sold by druggists under a money back guarantee. It is a harmless tablet, easy to take, and can always be found at May Drug Co., who will promptly refund the purchase price if you are dissatisfied.

"Three years ago I went down in health with inward weakness," said Mrs. Dora Elliott of 2228 W. Cumberland St., Lebanon, Pa. "I had a catarrhal condition and continuous pains in my right side. I also cramped for two or three days at a time. I was becoming weak and miserable and very much discouraged when I heard that if I wrote to Dr. Pierce for advice it would be given to me. I did so, followed the advice given and today I am well, free from all my former ailments—thanks to Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, Golden Medical Discovery, and Pleasant Pellets, also the Lotion Tablets and Healing Suppositories, which I was able to purchase right here at the drug store."

Sure Way to Get Rid of Dandruff

Girls—if you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to comb or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it; then you destroy it entirely.

To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. Four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you may have. This simple remedy never fails.

Stop paying high prices for earphones, stop buying expensive treatments and enjoy the glorious relief that more than 100,000 others have found in Aurine. A few drops in each ear and relief comes instantly. Mr R P Maxwell, a well-known Deputy Sheriff, says, "Just started using my second bottle and am glad to state that I can now hear my watch tick. Today was the first time, this summer, I heard the church bell ring." No matter how stubborn or what your trouble is, you must try Aurine. No risk, no chance, no doubt, Aurine must do the work or cost you nothing.

"It's so easy to soak clothes whiter —with this safe hard-water soap" says Mrs. F. Breitenstein, 4431 Penn Ave.

"THE Rinso way of washing is so easy!" says this woman, one of the many users of Rinso right in this locality who have written us.

"All I have to do is soak the clothes overnight in the thick, safe Rinso suds, rinse thoroughly in the morning, and they're ready to be hung out—without any hard rubbing. You don't even have to boil! Yet they always turn out even whiter than if they'd been boiled for hours.

"Rinso is just right for our water. It goes much farther than other soaps and no softener is needed. That's why I use it for all my housework such as dishes, floors, sinks and woodwork!"

The secret is in the *suds!

Rinso's suds are different—thick, creamy and lasting even in the hardest water. Dirt, grease, grime and stains soak right out—with no hard rubbing.

Rinso asks no help of bar soaps, chips, powders or softeners. Alone it washes clothes whiter. Why, even boiling isn't necessary; clothes come from the washer or tub so sweet and gleaming!

This way saves the clothes—Rinso contains nothing to harm your finest cottons or linens. Then, too—clothes aren't scrubbed threadbare. The grimiest edges come snowy with little or no rubbing. Saves the hands, too; they are in hot suds so little.

You get your full money's worth when you buy Rinso, the granulated hard-water soap—it's so compact. Just feel how weighty the package is. For best results follow the easy directions.

Washing machine makers endorse it

Rinso is the ideal washing machine soap. Try it and see for yourself why 32,000 demonstrators of washers use this hard-water soap. See why the makers of 32 leading washing machines highly endorse it.

Guaranteed by the makers of Lux. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

GENERAL MOTORS makes an Important Announcement regarding the New OLDSMOBILE

When the new Oldsmobile Six was presented at the New York Automobile Show, there was created a new standard of excellence in a fine car of low price—

—for this bigger, finer and more beautiful car represents the greatest single step that Oldsmobile has ever taken in carrying out its "policy pledged to progress".

Setting new standards of beauty . . . creating new standards of performance . . . and offering a galaxy of features that eloquently attest its advanced engineering—this impressive car is the subject of animated discussion wherever it has been exhibited.

And, very naturally, this discussion is centered around Oldsmobile's ability to provide a car of such obvious excellence—at such low prices.

Why is it that Oldsmobile can build an automobile so outstanding in its field for size, distinction and comfort? Why is it that Oldsmobile is distinguished by coach work so masterly in conception and execution?

Why is it that Oldsmobile's performance marks such a revolutionary advancement among automobiles of comparable cost?

These, in substance, are questions that have been asked over and over again by persons inspecting the new Oldsmobile. And the answer to every question is the same: Oldsmobile is a division of General Motors!

In designing the new Oldsmobile chassis, Oldsmobile engineers had the constant cooperation of the engineering staffs of every other General Motors division—and of the scientists in the General Motors Research Laboratories.

In proving its performance, stamina and economy, the General Motors Proving Ground was used consistently for more than two years—with a total of more than a million miles of testing!

The creation of the distinguished new bodies was a co-operative endeavor between Oldsmobile and the master designers of the Fisher Body Corporation.

And finally, in the actual production of the car, various other General Motors divisions were employed to produce such units as radiators, bearings, spark plugs, air cleaners, oil filters, speedometers, steering wheels, warning horns and starting, lighting and ignition equipment.

The constant availability of all these General Motors resources has given to Oldsmobile many vital manufacturing advantages—has made it possible for Oldsmobile to produce an automobile so outstanding in beauty, performance and quality that it sets an entirely new standard of value.

General Motors is proud of the new Oldsmobile—not only because it exemplifies the General Motors policy of progress—not only because it furnishes another example of the promptness with which General Motors passes engineering advancements on to the public...but because it marks a significant milestone in the development of "a car for every purse and purpose".

In keeping with General Motors policy of progress, the new Oldsmobile Six has been developed with the thought in mind of giving the public the distinctive appearance, exceptional performance and high dollar value that provides a fine car at low price.

JERRY The Epic of a Girl Who Had to Wait. by Elenore MEHERIN

Marza Asks Jerry If She Is Interested in Saxon Rhodes

SHE lay back on the pillow now, watching the golden ferryboats weaving in and out of the slips. Radiant spring morning. Without even disturbing herself she could see the bay in a vast undulating glimmer; see the islands and the Berkeley Hills. She often thought: "I ought to turn into a big, decent sort of person, looking at that each morning."

But now she took deep, intoxicating breaths, and with lazy, dreamlit eyes watched a smoke ring curling upwards. Presently she would get up and go paddling into the kitchen, cook breakfast, bring it on a tray to Marza's bed. She did this each morning.

And she would find out about Saxon Rhodes. All about him. There must be a great deal—color, beauty, fine high deeds. In the 19 years of her life there had been even Earl Brooks, who was so handsome, who had wished to marry Marza and with whom a little girl of 12 was wildly infatuated.

She pulled reluctantly from bed, crossed the living room, paused to fling up the windows. Nice room, this—lined with George King's books—hundreds of them. Quite thoughtful of him to have bought this place. And just in the nick of time. Of course, he hadn't expected to die. So it had proved thoughtful in spite of him. And they got along well enough—she and Marza, on the rent of the three other apartments.

She went slithering down the hall, stopping in amazement before her mother's open door. Marza was up. She was kneeling on the floor packing a suitcase. On a chair, very carefully, her sport clothes were laid out.

"Here, come in! Sit on it—press hard. It won't close."

Jerry sat hard, her knees hunched, her arms wound about her long, childish brown legs. She looked like a dark, gay butterfly resting.

"One thing that's so thrilling about you, Marza," she offered graciously, regarding her mother with whimsical appraisement, "is that you look well asleep. Few people do. And you're lovelier in the morning without even a ribbon about you. Where do we happen to be going?"

"Why, to Del Monte. Didn't you hear the plans last night?"

"Oh—I didn't know it meant us. Is the whole crowd going?"

Marza glanced up, an arrested question in her eyes. "Meaning Saxon Rhodes? Yes, he's going. You're interested?"

"Why," said the girl breezily, "CERTAINLY! I thought him very exciting."

"But he isn't. He's exceedingly poor. A struggling young architect. He's not half as exciting as Heinie."

"Because of the money?"

"Exactly."

"People with guts don't need money."

"They're the very people who do. They've more capacity to enjoy—more hungry for life. They can use money imaginatively. The poor in spirit should be poor. Money is useless to them."

"But I read a story once of a couple who didn't have a bean and three children. They had a gorgeous time. It's that thing Corny Stratton wrote—'An American Idyl.' Why, they even went to Europe. Penniless! People with imagination can live adventures. Sunsets and mountain tops don't cost money."

"It costs to reach the mountain top."

"Is this your subtle way of advising me to annex Heinie?"

"No. But if it came to a choice and you asked my opinion, I'd say Heinie was the safest bet for happiness. The wife of Saxon Rhodes won't have an easy time, either emotionally or financially. These young idealists make very unsatisfactory husbands.

"They have such a mad dream about it all. No ONE woman can ever fill the bill."

Jerry seized on a word. With half-shut eyes she asked, fascinated: "Is Saxon an idealist? With a thrilling dream of women?"

Marza held up an orange colored shawl. "I wonder if I should take this?" Then crisply, "Tess Willi is bringing Saxon. So that's that."

An airy laugh. "You think I can't compete with Tess Willi? A washed-out blonde!"

"Gentlemen prefer them. Besides she has the money a poor ambitious boy needs. She says he's a poet in stone. You see where Tess is driving."

A merry shrug, and looking with a grin at her clasped hands, "The real Tess Willi is 10 below zero. Have you considered this?"

Jerry laughed and hopped from the suitcase. "What will you have for breakfast, Mrs. King?"

She stood a moment winding the thin silk nightgown about her vague form. She was suddenly quiet, her eyes warm purple fire. "Money—safe bets—Heinie—who wants them?" Huskily, leaning down to Marza. "Not I. Mother, I'm like you. Give me the rapture! And the terror—all or nothing—LIFE!"

At 6 o'clock, that singing evening in February three machines drove up to the old Del Monte Hotel. From one of these a black-haired, dark-eyed girl stepped out. She glanced about in eager greeting. Oh, those tall, upstanding pines, arching so nobly over the Roman pool, the meadow lake! Beyond these the distant blue of Monterey's Bay.

She loved this homely, cupolaed building, squatting so affably with the air of a plain, old woman who remains quiet and simple while a setting of supreme and thrilling beauty grows up about her.

A long time ago—10 years—Jerry had come on her first visit. She remembered it perfectly. Her father's sharp, nervous glances, his lips pulled together tightly. Marza, just a girl then, in a drooping red milan and some startling red dress that made her a gypsy queen with the flashing astonishment of dark eyes and red, sweet smile.

Jerry could imitate yet the exact tone of George King saying to Marza as they entered the room, "Must you even smile at the bellhops?"

Other visits were pleasanter. After George was gone. Like this one today . . . gay, touched with suspense.

She turned just as Saxon alighted, his face tan and happy, etched in laughter. Fifty feet distant.

Impulsively she raised her fingers to her lips, blew him a swift, taunting kiss.

He pulled off his hat in startled delight, caught it, all schuckle. Impudent, delicious kid—that little Jerry King.

She turned, flushing, and hurried after Marza.

In a hum, in a sweet, quivering excitement, she paused combing her hair to wonder eagerly, "Is this love? Yes—yes! Does it come so quickly? Yes—yes!"

Then she thought happily, "He's better than last night—even better than that."

Aloud to Marza, "I'll wait for you—outside—on the veranda."

Crimson glow fading in the sky; darkness thronging with still, intent busyness. Night coming on in beauty, in silence haunting as music.

The girl, white, dark eyes dreaming, moving through the shadows. The trees voiced her expectance, her eager, inarticulate yearning. Murmur of life, hushed, insistent, sweet. She heard it vaguely—a thing wild and lovely, urging her on.

Suddenly she was very alert—listening. A couple coming down the path. The girl, a bit theatrical with her loud, cultivated English voice and her trailing brocade wrap. A young girl with reddish-blonde hair and a quick vivacious manner.

"Hurry" she said to the man, "Horace Hopkins is like George Washington. He doesn't ask, 'Have the guests arrived?' but, 'Is the dinner hour here?'"

The man, with a shrug, took her arm, hurried her to a machine. Going off to dinner—the two of them—Tess and Saxon.

Jerry stood very quiet against a tree.

Tess laughed. As Saxon opened the car she faced him, her face raised. He stooped and gave her a long, rapt kiss.

CHAPTER III.

ALONG while after Saxon and Tess were gone, Jerry remained in the shadows intently observing tree trunks barred with silver light. She felt extraordinarily stilled as though she were never to move, never to laugh again.

She knew she was absurd. As though she hadn't kissed quite dozens of men herself. Her sense of humor came feebly to the rescue, reminding her derisively: "You wanted it for YOURSELF! You're sore Tess got it!"

But it was more than this. It was the dimming of a radiance.

She went slowly back, not deigning an answer to Heinie when he excitedly caught her arm and rushed her to his room.

"There won't be a drink left if you don't hurry. I've been searching for you everywhere."

She gave him a pitying stare.

"What did I do now?" he begged humbly. "Jerry, DON'T start high hatting me. My whole week-end will be spoiled."

"Oh, be your age—cut the sob stuff!"

Heinie looked grieved. He was a tall, lanky youth about 22 with a long, kind face and brown eyes like a faithful dog's. A doughboy in a helmet—nothing warlike but the uniform.

Gay sounds filled Heinie's room. Marza's golden laugh. Sitting on the bed, on chairs, on the floor. Glasses raised. Others entering—men and women of Marza's age, but looking a full decade older. An actress—a famous singer—a man who wanted to be governor.

Out of the medley near Jerry came suddenly this: "Will Tess marry him?"

"Not if Saxon knows it."

From Pete West—cynical, married and 28: "Takes two to decide that. Usually the woman is the two! I gamble on Tess. These strident wenches have a habit of getting what they want."

Jerry sipped vaguely from the glass Heinie offered.

"You're awfully moody," he pleaded.

Later when they were dancing she kept peeking over his elbow. Each time she saw a pair of big swinging shoulders and tan, sun-burned hair she grew rigid in Heinie's arms.

They strolled out through the trees. Warm and a scent of hyacinths. Moon swaying in jale gold mist. Heinie's arm tightening. Voice swift, pleading: "Jerry—Jerry, dear—" stooping to her, drawing her closer.

With the suddenness of lightning, her foot came stamping on the gravel: "I'm SICK of it!"

She went, flying up the path—a flutter of angry white.

Morning. Wild canaries singing in the pines. Breeze fluttering delicate as gauze.

A young girl swinging a folio stepped into the golden warmth. She threw her head back, taking in a long draught of the sunny air. And went swiftly as though bent on great, serious business up the long, dusty grade that leads from Monterey to Carmel.

Green leaves everywhere, dewy and shining. Suddenly a flock of birds rose from a thicket and went winging upward to a soft blue sky.

"If I could paint the feel of that!" thought the girl, eyes stinging with the poetry of this enchanted morning.

At the top of the grade, she went through the toll gate to the forest.

From the high point here, down over treetops was a view of the Monterey coast line sweeping up to mountain tops, curving down to water—long, inspiring march of beauty. Jerry King wanted to sketch this.

For half an hour she worked eagerly. Suddenly the dumfounded look on Heinie's face as she flung from him last night interjected itself. She laughed abruptly. Poor Heinie!

When she took up her crayon again the flash was gone from it. She leaned back against the slope musing.

Up through the trees came a man and two dogs. A head flung back in the sunlight; the dogs, beautiful Gordon setters, rushing here and there joyously; now and then halting in utter quiet, motionless and pointing.

Jerry regarded them without stirring. But there crept through her, timidly at first, then with exhilaration, a flurry of joy.

Saxon spoke to the larger dog. It ran up immediately and poked a wet nose in Jerry's face. The man laughed: "He's giving you back what you blew me yesterday. Many thanks!"

She clasped her hands about the dog's neck. "Where did you get them?"

He dropped casually to her feet as though the meeting was arranged. "They're mine. I loaned them to Horace Hopkins for a hunting trip. Listen—where were you last night? I wanted a dance. You didn't go to bed before 11?"

She gave a worldly wise shrug.

Why We Behave Like Human Beings

Thyroid Glands, Enlarged, May Cause Goitre; Idiotic Dwarfs If Deficient

How the growth and repair of the body is regulated by glands was the subject of yesterday's chapter of "Why We Behave Like Human Beings" in The Sun-Telegraph. New chapters of life are being opened by discoveries of their functioning. The study being made is teaching us much about heredity.

Most Powerful Drug in Our Bodies

CHAPTER 18

THE endocrine gland best understood is the thyroid (shield-like) astride our Adam's apple. It varies individually and with age. It is relatively largest in fetal life. At birth its weight in proportion to the entire body is as 1 to 300; by the third week, 1 to 1,160, and in the adult, as 1 to 1,800. It is generally larger in women than in men. Why this is so is not yet known.

GEORGE A. DORSEY

The thyroid usually consists of two equally developed lobes two inches long, an inch and a quarter broad. They vary greatly; one lobe may be much larger than the other, or may be quite absent. Generally the two lobes are connected by an isthmus; this also varies in position or may be absent. There may be accessory thyroid down the trachea as far as the heart.

Only in higher fishes does the thyroid become a ductless gland, take on new functions, and start a new career. In man, a duct is sometimes found in the isthmus—vestige of a condition found in lowest fishes, echo of millions of years ago. It is prone to trouble.

Miracles of Treatment

Children with deficient thyroids, through removal, atrophy, or injury, become heavy-featured, gibbering, idiotic dwarfs known as cretins; they do not metamorphose into normal adults. Their skin is dry and hairless; their sex glands are underdeveloped; their public hair and puberty develop late or not at all; their temperature is subnormal; they are pot-bellied because their pelvis remains small, their limbs short and thick. The corresponding adult condition is known as myxedema; white, hairless and thick, dry, rough skin; obesity; lowered temperature and metabolism; pulse slow and weak; mind dull.

These appalling results in both children and adults have been corrected by feeding thyroid extract. The changes thus produced have been little short of miraculous. Cretins have increased in stature several inches in one year. The first myxedema patient to be treated died in 1929 after 29 years of good health due to thyroid feeding.

Indispensable Iodine

Enlargement of the thyroid from whatsoever cause is called goiter, or Derbyshire neck. But an overdeveloped or over-active thyroid produces a definite disease known as toxic or exophthalmic goiter, or Graves' disease. This is characterized by increased metabolism and blood pressure, rapid pulse, lax and moist skin, nervousness, and protruding eyeballs—hence the name, "exophthalmic." The remedy is still in the hands of the surgeon. The cause and significance of change in the thyroid in toxic goiter and the cause of endemic goite, are not yet understood. Nor is it understood why women are more prone to toxic goiter than men, the disproportion in some localities being as high as 15 to 1.

It is believed that the activating principle of the thyroid hormone is thyroxin, isolated by Kendall in 1918. Thyroxin is a crystalline compound of three molecules of iodine fixed in a protein derivative; triiodo-tri-hydro-oxyindole propionic acid, or 65 per cent of iodine.

Only the thyroid secrets thyroxin, and apparently it is the iodine in thyroxin that tells the story. Iodine is found in many seaweeds; is three times more abundant in codfish than in human beings; is found in traces in milk and in drinking water; and gets its name from its violet (iodes) color!

Possibly no life exists without iodine. Certainly normal human life is impossible withone one one-hundredth of a grain of thyroxin a day. Three and a half grains of thyroxin are all that stands between intelligence and imbecility. But, there are, of course, dozens of causes of subnormal mentality other than hypothyroidism.

Very Tiny Doses

No limit of function can yet be assigned to any one endocrine, because they are parts of an organic whole and function as parts of living individuals. So with the thyroid: much is known, its whole story is far from known.

The adrenals, or suprarenals, get their name from their position just above the kidneys. Normally they are of the size and shape of a large bean. But they vary: one—or, in rare cases, both—may be absent, there may be accessory adrenals varying in size from a pin head to a large pea. Removal of both is always fatal, often within a few hours. When death does not follow their removal it is because accessory adrenals are present and can function.

Adrenin is a powerful drug and a powerful cardio-vascular stimulant. Normally our blood contains about eight milligrams of it, which means that the proportion of adrenin to arterial blood is one part to a billion.

Administered as one part in twenty millions, it acts on the uterus and is a useful drug in hemorrhages following delivery. It influences some tissues when diluted to one part in 100,000,000. It depresses the intestinal canal when diluted to one part in 330,000,000.

What such dilution means has been worked out in terms of street sprinklers each of 625 gallons' capacity. A procession of such sprinklers 20 miles long and 200 to the mile would hold just enough water to dilute one ounce of adrenin down to one dose. Large doses are fatal.

Adrenin is a drug, one of the most potent our body concocts. Yet adrenal feeding leads to no known or proved results. The administration of the drug adrenalin does lead to profound results.

Our body blood contains this drug. Whether it is made by or excreted by the adrenals is still an open question, but that adrenin has specific action on the vascular system, the nervous system, the blood, the alimentary canal, and on sugar mobilization, there is no doubt.

Nor is there any doubt that when administered as a drug it increases the action of local anesthetics by constricting the blood vessels, thus preventing local loss of the anesthetic. And as this reduces the amount of anesthetic required, it also reduces the amount of toxin danger from the anesthetic.

It checks hemorrhages. It allays the spasms of acute bronchial asthma. It also stimulates weak hearts and fortifies the hearts of the old and infirm against the shock of operation.

In short, adrenalin exerts an influence upon all smooth muscle innervated by fibers of the autonomic nervous system. That makes its responsibility enormous, its influence on human destiny second to none.

JOHN KENNEDY

A gold watch was presented yesterday by fellow employes to John Kennedy, on his retirement after 37 years' service with the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, including its subsidiary, the Hope Natural Gas Company here.

"GUSHER" BURSTS INTO FLAMES

SISTERSVILLE, W. Va., Feb. 29.—(AP.)—An explosion and fire at a drilling operation of the American Oil Development Company at Little Sancho, Tyler county, resulted in injury to five men, one of whom was reported today in a critical condition.

The well was flowing, spouting oil 150 feet into the air, when it caught afire late last night. In the explosion that followed, J. W. Lancaster was badly burned. The four other men were only slightly hurt. The roar of the spouting oil and gas was heard a mile from the well. The fire was controlled after it had burned several hours. The steel drilling rig was not greatly damaged.

A great deal of interest has been shown in the new well, which is regarded as a possible opening of a new field in this county.

BARES PLOT IN PAY HOLDUP

Examination of Joseph Weskowski, workhouse inmate and confessed member of the "Flathead gang" of payroll robbers, will be resumed this morning in the case of Stanley Bodziakowski, on trial for his part in the bombing of the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Company pay car March 11 at Coverdale, when $104,000 was stolen. Weskowski, star witness for the prosecution, yesterday incriminated Bodziakowski as a member of the gang that staged the robbery.

Bodziakowski was at Weskowski's farm near Bentleyville the night before the robbery, when final plans for the holdup were made, according to Weskowski, who now is serving a term of five to ten years for his part in the crime. About $40,000 of the loot was dug up on Weskowski's farm by county detectives, who yesterday told how they recovered the loot. An alleged confession said to have been made by Bodziakowski following his arrest in Montreal, will be introduced today, according to the prosecution.

IT APPEARS that Pittsburgh is going to lose its professional hockey franchise. Eastern capital is reaching in here to pluck from this community one of its entertaining and clean sport amusements. It is too bad the Townsend boys of the West End cannot retain this franchise, but if it is a losing proposition they have no recourse but to sell.

Roy Schooley helped in building up hockey not only here, but in nearly every other place in this country where hockey is flourishing, mainly through the formation of a good amateur league which thrived for awhile.

It's too bad that Schooley cannot get proper backing to hold the franchise here if the Townsend boys insist on selling. This thing of enterprises, amusement and industrial, moving away from Pittsburgh does not go down so easily with Pittsburghers.

SUCH observations on hockey are prompted by a meeting the other night with Odie Cleghorn, who is the manager of the Pittsburgh team. Considering the handicaps, Mr. Cleghorn has done well with his club here. Those who know the young Canadian will be sorry if the sale of the team means he will leave.

THE sartorial landscape will lose something, too, if Mr. Cleghorn departs. He is one of the few citizens who can wear a stiff derby, a green-striped shirt with collar to match, and spats without seeming to feel that he is dressed up like Mrs. Astor's horse.

WITH Mr. Cleghorn was Mr. Herbert Drury, a hockey player of no mean ability, whose getting hold of the puck in a hot game always is the signal for the arena to ring out "Come on, Herb." Those fans who know him intimately yell: "Come on, Herby."

MR. DRURY recalled the evening in Duquesne Garden when of all targets that were available in the spacious arena he selected just the owner then of two Pittsburgh's papers.

MR. A. K. OLIVER had asked Mr. Drury to use language that might pass the censor as Mr. Drury at the time was popping off about a penalty imposed on him by the referee. Mr. Drury gets a temper and for no good reason, beyond his temper, he swished a club around. This was not entirely a new experience for Mr. Oliver who used to play hockey at Yale.

WHEN Mr. Drury was told later the name of the man, at whom he had swished his club, he almost, as he relates now, passed out. He would go and make apology, but he never got close to the net with the apology as Mr. Oliver happened to know hockey players and said an apology was not necessary.

AFTER that, said Mr. Drury the other evening, if Mr. Oliver ever needs anyone to swing a club in any cause whatsoever Mr. Drury will purchase several new strong clubs and be on the job.

MR. CLEGHORN was commenting on the affairs of the hockey circuit. His observation that Chicago is the toughest place in which to play will be believed by everyone who reads the papers. It appears that in Chicago if the referee or player does not meet the fancy of the crowd, there comes a shower of newspapers and some of them are wrapped around such things as bottles. One of the players feeling that a rolled newspaper would not hurt him very much scorned to duck, but unfortunately inside the rolled paper was a coupling pin or a bottle and the player in question is still rubbing a perplexed hand over divers knobs on his dome.

EVEN in Pittsburgh some of the boys toss a bottle now and then, but as a loyal Pittsburgher we must say this must be just in a spirit of fun. Then, too, the bottles aren't thrown at home players but at visiting players and officials. In sports, there is a great difference between the home player and anyone opposed to him.

2 BOYS HELD IN MAIL FRAUD

Steve Burgoyne, 16, and John Sadary, 15, both of Rankin, were held for court yesterday by the United States commissioner on a charge of using the mails to defraud.

According to postoffice inspectors, the boys mailed spurious checks to a mail order house in Chicago for radio supplies, automobile tires and accessories, musical instruments and other articles. One check for $200, signed "John Smith," was said to have been honored and the goods shipped.

The others were turned over to the postal authorities.

IF BACK HURTS FLUSH KIDNEYS

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts, which helps to remove the body's urinous waste and stimulate them to their normal activity.

The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of good water—you can't drink too much, also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they are no longer a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this; also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.

Marza Asks Jerry If She Is Interested in Saxon Rhodes

"At the particular moment when you chanced to be seeking me, I may have been strolling in the moonlight. Under the trees."

"You do that, do you? Nicely?"

She buried her hand fiercely in the deep scruff. "I think dogs are better than people! They live cleaner, more natural lives. They're so straightforward! And so darn glad to see you!"

"Oh," said Saxon with a gleam, "May someone, not a dog, who is also darn glad to see you, say it in leaps and bounds as Jack did a moment ago?"

She ignored him. "I wonder if dogs do think we're gods? Like Mr. Gissing and the tramp. You read that—'Where the Blue Begins'?"

"No—what is it about—hot dogs and wild women?"

"Yes—just that," said she, gritting her teeth.

He reached down and picked up the book half open at her feet. "What's this? Asmodeus! Good Lord, child, for a gay little flapper you've a very quaint taste in literature."

"I suppose you know all about flapper taste?"

"I've been told my technique is excellent. And that I give very darling ones."

She grinned, hating Saxon Rhodes bitterly.

He went on, smiling, lazily turning the pages of her book. "I followed you here."

"Oh, thanks."

Deep chuckling laugh, humming with secret hilarity. "I thought you'd be pleased. I wanted to know what you meant when you asked me if I was real the other night. That was a most adorable remark."

"Part of my technique," said she bitingly.

"Adorable, nope the less. Why are you interested in this book—this century old thing? YOU of TODAY!"

"I suppose you think TODAY is easy as well as worthless? I want to tell you that since the world began there was never a harder, more muddled time for a girl than this same TODAY."

She leaned back, her head against the tree. He noticed suddenly the dress she wore—a simple navy blue jumper with sleeves and collars of lavender silk. Oddly the lavender seemed the color of her cheeks and eyes; the navy was the tone of her blue-black hair. Rich, warm harmony of color.

"She's beautiful," he thought and was astonished not to have noted this before. Beautiful and very sweet as she sat there musing and troubled.

He reached up, touched her hand: "All the gay technique vanished this morning? Why so? I've been watching you for the last half hour. What were you doing in such a flaming fury? And what do you find so troubling today?"

A trill of merriment. Pleasant the look on his face.

"Myself! For the last half hour I've been deciding my future. Once I thought I was to be a real artist. I know now that I never will be—perhaps not even good enough to make a living in commercial work. That's what I want to do—long to do. If I haven't enough talent for this, I'll be in an awful fix."

"Why?"

"I'll have nothing to do! That's the heck of it today. Unless a girl has to get out and dig for mere bread and butter, there's nothing for her to do. She doesn't have to weave or spin or cook or wash. She's just as unnecessary as two queens in one beehive. She has no choice, as Nietzsche points out between meaningless activity and boredom."

"You might get married."

"I've considered that. Get married and have 17 children immediately!"

"Quite a drastic escape. Having 17 children, for all you know, may be just as meaningless activity as painting 17 worthless pictures."

"But I'd have no time to speculate about it. That helps. And I'd be saved from whole years at a bridge table half a cent a point; saved from whole rivers of gin rickeys. On a lovely morning like this, I don't want to sink into that!

"But I will as sure as fate—unless—"

She reached over to her folio. Suddenly she held a sketch toward him. "You should have judgment, being an architect. I hear that you're a poet in stone. This is the best of my sketches. Tell me—is it any good?"

She handed it over in a breathless, poignant anxiety, shutting her eyes and tucking her small brown hand in his. "I can't look at you while you're deciding. But tell the TRUTH!"

Then she knew he was looking at her with those light thrilling eyes.

She wished to raise hers; glance long and long in his.

"Why," he was saying, fervent and astonished, "did you do this? You little kid? Can you do more like it? Really—"

She didn't listen to the words. She was feeling the warmth of his hand closing on hers, bewildered by the power of it—the deep exquisite sweetness.

He kept looking at her, touched by her ardent, hungry youth—stirred by the lovely softness of her face. In this troubled-appealing eagerness she seized his imagination. Not just a sweet, audacious kid now. The wistful picture of a girl standing on a threshold—

"Jerry," he said, "look up, please. I want to see what's in your eyes. Let me."

CHAPTER IV.

A LASH of sunny blue, Jerry's eyes grinning into his: "Hello, there!"

"You're a darling!"

"I know. So are you. Tell me, do you like that sketch? You think it honestly good?"

"It IS good. You keep this up. You go on working at it and you'll never need to worry about boredom."

She drew in her breath rapturously, grabbed back the sketch and kissed it. "Here, I did this of you. Yesterday morning. I call it 'A first impression.' Eh?"

He regarded it, blushing and gleeful: "Well, I wish they'd let you sculp my face in the beginning! This is very nice. And augure well for our future. Now we can talk. First, what did you mean by asking me if I was real?"

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

Thursday, March 1

A wise man should have money in his head but not in his heart.—SWIFT.

THE beneficial aspect between the solar and lunar bodies on this day makes for promotion, preferment and recognition by superiors or those in places of power and authority, but the adverse aspect of Luna and Jupiter does not promise much in the way of financial corollaries. Safeguard the money, shun speculation and lawsuits. It might be well to postpone the signing of new contracts.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of preferment, honors or favors from those in high places, but the finances may not increase proportionately. It would be hazardous to speculate, to resort to litigation or sign new contracts.

A child born on this day should have many excellent qualities to bring it to the fore, but its financial outlook may not be so good. It should be taught thrift and sound economic principles.

Notable Nativity: Augustus St. Gaudens, sculptor.

"My dear, I'm all-of-a-BIB-and-TUCKer at this point, no less—I mean I ACtually AM, because I've simply got to the POINT where I'm DESp'rate! I mean I've tried EV'ry way I know HOW to gently inCINerate to ARab and NOIsy that occACcionally I'd like to be able to hold a little light converSAtion with ARab's BROTHer diVORCED from their HIGHly diVERting society but, my dear, it hasn't done the SLIGHTest bit of GOOD because I mean those FOUL little PIP-squeaks wouldn't take a HINT if you CAREfully wrapped it UP in a HUNdred dollar BILL or something because I mean they're the WORLD'S DUMBest MORtals without DOUBT—you know the type! ### Pat in Delirium Calls Lily the Pet Name She Loves

SHE wrote the letter on a hot night when the very wind that came wandering in between the curtains of Florence France's bedroom was like a breath from a furnace.

Florence and she had shared the small room since the second night she had stayed in the house, and they had become good friends, curiously enough.

Florence was sitting cross-legged on the foot of the bed on this particular night while Lily's pen went scratch-scratch across her sheet of paper.

She was looking over a fashion magazine, and every now and then she would lift her voice to read some exciting bit of style news to Lily.

"They say that uneven hemlines are the thing for summer," she was reading aloud, when suddenly she stopped and raised one finger, listening intently.

Lily listened, too. From the room across the hall came the sound of Pat's voice, not thick and sleepy as it had been for a fortnight, but loud and clear.

"If I'd had any money she'd have stayed with me," he was saying, as if he were arguing with somebody. "But I didn't have any money—"

"Sshh!" Elizabeth's voice tried to soothe and calm him. "Hush!—hush!"

There came the sound of a spoon against a glass, and then Pat said something else in a thick, low voice.

Then there was dead silence.

An hour later, when Florence had gone to bed and the whole house was wrapped up in stillness, Lily got up and crossed the hall to look at Pat. She always took a last look at him at night, before she settled down.

To her surprise Elizabeth got up and came out into the hall.

"I want to talk to you," she said, and sat down on the window seat at the western end of it, near the stairs.

"Pat started to talk about you tonight," she said quietly, after a few moments. "Did you hear him?"

Lily nodded. "Yes. What of it?" she asked. "Wasn't that the most natural thing in the world—that a man should talk about his wife, even if they were separated?"

"I've been wondering, all through this illness of his, if he would," the nurse went on, trying to explain herself. "You see, before he got sick he kept telling me that he never thought of you—that he was through with you and didn't care what happened to you. But you see, he has you on his mind all the time. Here he is, trying to figure out just why you left him in the first place. You heard what he said—'If I'd had any money she'd have stayed with me.' You see, he has you in his mind all the time."

Her hands tightened on the pencil that she held in them. "We were going to get married just as soon as you got your divorce," she said. "But I certainly am not going to do anything like that if he still bothers about you like this."

She looked at Lily, and for once all her calmness and poise had deserted her. She looked as if she were going to burst into tears.

"I'd never be happy with him," she said, "if I thought that he ever thought about you. And evidently he still is thinking about you 'way down deep in his mind."

Lily shook her head. "It won't do him any good," she said. "I wouldn't have him again—and I don't think he'd have me, in spite of what you say. We really hate each other."

Elizabeth Ertz shook her head. "You love him," she said. "Don't you think I know it?"

CHAPTER LVX.

ALL along Lily had been sure that Pat was planning to marry The Ertz as soon as he was free.

But now that she actually heard it, she went sick and faint and dizzy, mulling it over and over in her mind.

She turned her head finally and looked at The Ertz, hardly believing her ears.

"Say that again," she said. "What you told me about marrying Pat as soon as I divorced him. Did he ask you to marry him?"

The nurse hesitated. "Well, not in so many words," she confessed. "But he told me that I was the person he should have married in the beginning, instead of a girl like you—a girl who had everything and was used to everything. And I told him it didn't make any difference to me that he had made a mistake and married you. I told him I still cared about him. . . . I do. I always have." She spoke as simply as a truthful child.

"But if he still loves you I wouldn't have him," she went on, as if she were thinking aloud, "because he'd never be happy with me, even if you were married to that Drummond man, would he? He'd always have you on his mind, and I'd know it."

Lily nodded. "Yes, you would if he did care for me," she agreed. "But he doesn't—and I am going to marry Staley Drummond. That is, I'm going to marry him if he still wants me to. He may be very angry with me because I came down here. I wrote to him the night I came here and forgot to mail the letter—but I can probably explain all that to him when I see him."

The Ertz nodded. "Things are all mixed up in this world, aren't they?" she asked. "People never seem to know their own minds about anything. What are you doing about your divorce?"

"I'm going to try to have it held up for a while—until Pat is better," Pat's wife answered, getting up from the window seat and yawning. "And I do hope he's better soon. Typhoid fever is a queer disease, isn't it? Dragging on for weeks this way, while we don't know whether Pat's going to get well or not."

They had all become so used to the knowledge that Pat was balanced on the very brink of death during these slow weeks that they could not speak of it without breaking down — without excitement.

"I don't understand you, coming down here to stay while he's sick, when all the time you're planning to marry Drummond," the nurse murmured, staring into the darkness of the hall. "That's why I say that you must still be in love with Pat."

"I was once, and I still have a tender spot in my heart for him," Lily answered. "And that's why I'm here, partly. Only I don't really know why I did come—I just had to, I guess. But this is the end of things all the same. As soon as Pat's all right, I'm gone, and the divorce comes off."

She went to bed, thinking how strange it was that she should be on friendly terms with this woman and that they should sit down calmly to discuss their feelings toward Pat. It was laughable, really.

She was almost asleep when his voice roused her. She sat bolt upright in bed, not quite sure that she had not been dreaming.

She listened . . . and then she heard it again. "Baby!" he was saying in the thick, drowsy voice of his delirium. But she knew that he wanted her. There was only one person in the world whom he called "Baby" in just that way, putting all of his love into the two silly little syllables.

In an instant Lily was out on the floor in her bare feet, and out of her room and on the threshold of the one across the hall.

Elizabeth Ertz was standing beside the bed, looking down at Pat. She had taken off her uniform and her long brown hair was in two braids down her back. "Sshh!" she said, and tried to wave Lily away. "He's worse. I'm going to telephone the doctor."

She tried to draw Lily with her into the hall and to shut the door of the room. But Lily was not to be drawn away. . . . Pat had called her and she was going to him.

"Just don't try to hold me," she said quickly and sharply to the little nurse, and she flew into the bedroom.

Pat was still muttering in his stupor when she knelt down beside him on the rug and laid her hand on his shoulder and her head down on the pillow beside him. "There, there, my boy!" she kept saying to him, over and over, not knowing what she was saying. "There, there, nice boy!"

The doctor came, and Mrs. France came pattering in on her felt slippers. Florence woke up, too, and she and her father sat on the window seat in the hall and waited for the doctor to tell them how Pat was.

They had a long wait, for Dr. Billings, a small, conscientious man, took off his coat and helped Elizabeth Ertz give Pat the treatment that he advised.

Through it all Lily never moved. When the doctor came she went over to a corner of the room and sat there, huddled against the wall, with Pat's old blue bathrobe around her, and there she stayed, watching the bed with wide-open, frightened eyes.

"If Pat dies I may as well be dead, too," she told herself, as it came to her that a world without Pat in it would be a dull and dreadful world to live in.

Love's Embers

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife" — By Adele Garrison

"THERE!" I said, fastening the last hook upon Mother Graham's gown and turning her so that she faced the full length mirror. "Take a good look at yourself, Duchess, and then pray for humility. You'll never get it any other way after a glance at that reflection."

She gave me a playful little slap upon the shoulder.

"Don't talk nonsense!" she said tartly, but I knew by her eyes that she was far from being displeased. "Run along now to your guests. I'll be down in a minute."

"There aren't any to run down to, just at present," I returned, smiling at her. "The Underwoods and Mr. Veritzen are in their rooms, dressing, and the rest haven't arrived yet."

"One of 'em has," she retorted, "or do you count that young sprig of a Veritzen one of the family? Goodness knows he's underfoot enough to be counted in."

"He was here, but he has gone back to the Tiger house again," I answered, bracing myself for the cross-examination which I knew would follow this statement.

But she astonished me by nodding her head sagely.

"I thought he'd dodge meeting his father at the last minute," she said. "But isn't there anything you can do about it? Can't that pig-headed, conceited old bully be made to see reason?"

I saw the opportunity to disarm her probable criticism of my planned interview with our distinguished guest, and promptly seized it, rigidly suppressing my amusement at her characterization of the great man.

"If I can get a chance to speak to him alone, before the rest come, I'll do what I can to show him that if he refuses to meet Noel at dinner he is embarrassing our hospitality greatly."

"I'd go farther than that," my mother-in-law retorted with a vicious little click of her lips. "I'd tell the gentleman he'd either behave like one and put away his family feuds while he's a guest, or he'd cease to be a guest. But," reluctantly, "as long as you're working for him I don't suppose you can go that far. But I certainly should be emphatic with him. As for seeing him alone, just leave that to me. I'll make the opportunity for you to do that. Hurry along now. He may come downstairs at any minute."

I obeyed her injunction, but stopped at Lillian's door for a hurried whispered warning.

"Isn't she the eighth wonder?" Lillian commented. "Never fear, I'll play up to her."

She kept her promise, and when a little later, we were all gathered in the living room, she assisted and camouflaged Mother Graham's rather obvious tactics so cleverly that I found myself facing my employer across a low reading table, with no one else in the room.

There was no time to waste.

"Mr. Veritzen," I said with what I realized later was a pleading note and an agitated tremor, "I want to ask you a great favor, but I want you to promise first that you won't be offended at me—because I ask it."

There was pleased astonishment in his eyes.

"You know, my child," he began, "that anything in my power—"

He stopped, and his eyes narrowed.

"I suppose this concerns my young cub," he said.

Make them gargle often

Don't ever underestimate the danger of a sore throat; if neglected, it may develop into something serious—as many know to their sorrow.

The same goes for a cold; pneumonia at this time of the year is your great enemy.

At the first sign of cold or throat irritation, use Listerine full strength as a gargle. Keep it up systematically.

Being antiseptic, it immediately attacks the countless disease-producing bacteria in mouth and throat, and halts many an ailment before it becomes dangerous.

During winter weather, when you are usually subjected to poor air and sharp changes in temperature, it's a good idea to use Listerine every day as mouth wash and gargle.

This pleasant and easy precaution may spare you a trying and painful siege of illness. Lambert Pharmacal Company, St. Louis, Mo., U. S. A.

CHILLY SAUCE
By Chilly Doyle

Sun-Telegraph Staff Correspondent.

PASO ROBLES, Feb. 29.—A casual visitor in from Los Angeles met a friend in the lobby of the Paso Robles Hotel. The friend has been here throughout the stay of the Pirates, and he has become acquainted with most of the players. The newcomer apparently knew little about baseball, but he was deeply interested in the stalwart and well behaved men and boys who stepped lightly around the foyer. Eventually he asked his friend to point out the manager of the players.

"TRY out your powers of deduction and see if you can pick out the leader without asking any questions," suggested the fellow who was curious to know more. The latter made a short study of the setting and it wasn't long until he singled out Donie Bush. It might have been a better tale had he chosen some corn fed pitcher, but he didn't.

BUSH apparently can see as many things as any pilot while looking on a field of 25 athletes. He goes about in his swift way telling one boy this and another that. And the rookies were not the only players to hear something critical. Donie has taken due note of a fielding flaw in the play of Paul Waner.

PAUL is a baseball hawk on any sort of a drive on his right side, be it short or deep, and he shines in going straight back for a wallop, but the champion batter is not adept on field short hops that come down between himself and the foul line. In other words he is weak in coming in toward the left. His boss watched Paul chase fungo drives. Donie instructed Chic Fraser to plant the balls on the weak side and the right fielder thus had a little practice that should benefit him. Paul's arm, by the way, is one of the best in the league. Fans get a treat in watching him fire toward second or third.

CARMEN HILL caused a lot of buzzing as he went to the mound, capless and with one of those tennis wreaths around his forehead. Carmen perspires freely and he gets relief by using the somewhat romantic headdress. The big fellow resembled one of the famous Roman gladiators as he whizzed the ball across the home dish. Hill, by the way, uses the band beneath his ball cap on hot days of the summer.

RALSTON HEMSLEY is working like a beaver every minute he is in the ball orchard. The young coal miner is a catcher, but he seems to like third base, which position he has handled cleverly in the fielding sessions. John Deming is another tireless worker among the kids.

THE fight for the championship of the W. P. I. A. L. will get under way to night when Duquesne, representing Section 7, and Dormont High School, winner in Section 9, meet in the first contest of the title elimination series in the Pitt Stadium pavilion.

Both teams are on edge for the battle, and Coach Glass of Dormont hopes to pull through with victory.

ALLEGHENY BEATS FIFTH

Allegheny High School, Section 7's courageous representative, met and defeated Fifth Avenue High School, flying the banner of Section 1, in the opening contest of the City Senior League championship elimination series in the Pitt Stadium pavilion yesterday afternoon. The score was 19 to 11.

In only one period did the Downtowners outscore their North Side opponents, that being in the third, when they pulled in 7 to 5.

Fifth Avenue narrowed the margin of advantage to 19-14 in the third period, but dropped off considerably with the onslaught of the fourth frame, to lose by eight good points.

Already more than 60 teams are entered in the event, and it is expected that the last-day rush will bring the total to record proportions. ## Victory and Possible New Record Hahn's Prediction

By LLOYD HAHN,
Premier American Middle Distance Star.

Written for Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 29.—I will win from Dr. Peltzer and Ray Conger tonight. I expect to run the mile in 4 minutes and 12 seconds, the world record indoors. I may do better.

I say this without intended conceit. I feel that I am in the best condition that I have been all season. I have the same "on edge" feeling that I experienced last year when I defeated Edvin Wide, of Sweden, in an international race at Madison Square Garden, similar to the one tonight.

I don't mean by this that I don't expect to have competition. On the contrary I feel that the "mile of the century" as they have named it, will be a great race—one of the toughest of my racing career. Dr. Otto Peltzer is a great runner. He is also of the "one race runner" type. I mean by this that he will point for one particular race and give his best for that.

Ray Conger, the Illinois A. C. runner, is having a great season this year. He should run a great race, but I will win.

SHOTS and PASSES
by JULIUS LEVIN

OFFERED a program of three excellent basketball games, besides many sidelight attractions, followers of the popular winter indoor sport in this section are expected to turn out in large numbers at Duquesne University next Saturday night, when a basketball carnival will be presented for the benefit of the destitute miners.

Officials in charge of the affair have made arrangements to have the Duquesne Lafayettes, champions of the Allegheny County League for the last two years, oppose the Cleveland Rosenblums of the American Professional League in the feature game, and this contest alone should prove a magnet to attract the followers of the professional sport.

The Duquesne Lafayettes are without the least doubt one of the strongest teams developed in this section of the state and should prove themselves worthy opponents of the Rosenblums. The appearance of the Rosies in this section is their second of the season, having been defeated earlier this year by the McKeesport Cyclers at McKeesport.

Another contest that should draw a large turnout of divided supporters is the game between the J. J. Veronas and the Osceola Club for the first-half championship of the City League. These teams finished the first half of the schedule in a deadlock and Saturday's game will determine which of the two clubs will compete in the playoffs at the close of the second half.

ALL but out of the second half of the Pittsburgh and Ohio Valley League race, the Sianos will strive to survive elimination tonight when they meet the J. J. Mieles in a renewal of their basketball feud at Columbus Temple.

The two clubs have been rivals for the basketball championship of this loop all season and indications point to a torrid battle tonight. The Sianos succeeded in defeating the Mieles the last time the two clubs met at Columbus Temple and the league champions are determined to make up for that reversal tonight.

The two teams are supported by virtually the same fans, both hailing from the Hill district. Still suffering from the four-point defeat at the hands of the Somermans Monday night, the Sianos are eager to make amends tonight at the expense of the Mieles. The Mieles have not been going any too well in the second half, but are assured of a place in the playoffs at the close of the season as a result of winning the title in the initial round of play.

THE attention of amateur basketball fans will be focused on the Gen. Logan Armory tonight when the Pittsburgh Lancers clash with the Young Men's Hebrew Association team to determine which club will clash with the North Side Community House passers for the A. A. U. championship.

Three fine attractions are carded at the South Side Market House tonight. The Goldenson Vanities clash with the Turner girls, the five-cops oppose St. Catherines in a P. & O. League game, while the Lou Gordons and the Red McMahons meet in the second game of their three-game series. The Gordons won the opening contest.

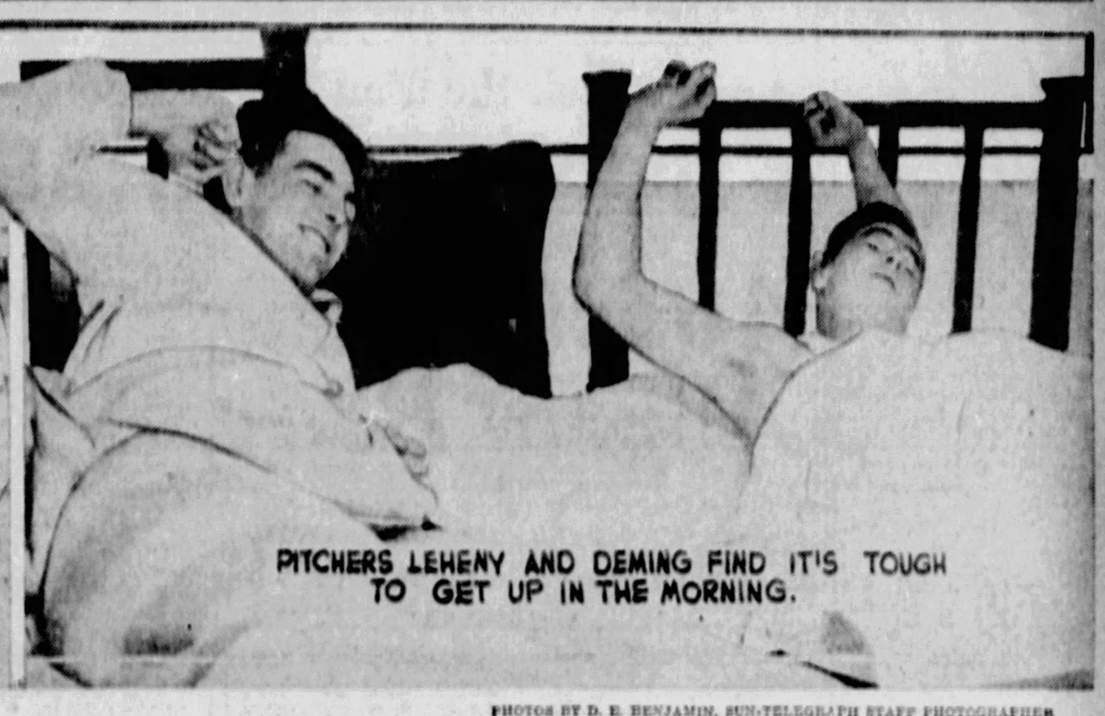
CATCHER SMITH LETS ROOKIE RECEIVERS IN ON CLUB'S SIGNALS.



PITCHERS LEHENY AND DEMING FIND IT'S TOUGH TO GET UP IN THE MORNING.

HOW TO SIGNAL THE PITCHER FOR A FAST ONE

Catcher Earl Smith, chief of the receiving staff of the Pirates, instructing the other catchers in the signals employed with the pitchers. This sign means a fast one, that a waste ball, another a curve, etc. Great secrecy surrounds these signs, and the main idea is to cover them up in such a way that the enemy can't get wise to what the next pitch will be.

PAULINO EXTENDS NEGRO RIVAL

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 29.—(AP.)—George Godfrey, Negro collossus of the ring, clubbed his way to a decision over Paulino Uzcudun, knotty-muscled son of the Basque country here last night after 10 furious rounds that had 40,000 persons on edge throughout.

Godfrey had no walkaway. Tipping the scales at 236½ pounds, which gave him a 44-pound advantage in weight, he had his hands full from the start.

Some boos and groans greeted the decision of George Blake, former manager of Fidel La Barba, retired flyweight champion, who was the referee.

Official figures showed that 36,605 persons paid $125,191 to see the fight.

ROBERT LOREN CANNEFAX, who died Monday in Arizona, in addition to being one of the greatest three-cushion billiard players of all time, was the most colorful of cueists.

Even had he possessed less skill and even though he never had become champion, Cannefax still would have been one of the greatest attractions in the billiard realm.

Bob Cannefax.

Evidence of his popularity was the way he packed them in every time he played here in the old three-cushion league. Win or lose he always pleased the crowd.

Bob would go to almost any limit for victory and in the heat of the game was wont to employ various tactics to disconcert his opponent, such as demanding that the balls be measured after he had

BUC CAMP TOILERS TURN TO BATTING

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,

PASO ROBLES, Cal., Feb. 29.—The National League champions, meaning Donie Bush's peppery Pirates, will begin active training today with the big idea in view—the retention of their league honors and a chance to show those Yankees that the Bush-whackers were stale and in the process of relaxation when they took the count four times in a row last October.

Little Donie will lead his charges into the first big session this morning, the day's schedule calling for two drills. Batting will feature both workouts.

With the exception of Catcher Johnny Gooch, the sheep are all in the fold. John's mother passed away last week and Gooch naturally had to alter his plans. It is expected he will join the others in a few days.

DUKES WIN; TECH PLAYS TONIGHT

By JESS CARVER

Carnegie Tech's varsity basketball team will attempt to squeeze one little ounce of glory out of the most disastrous court years in the school's history, and also attempt to shatter the spell Wash-Jeff has woven about the Plaid since the beginning of cage relations when the team takes the floor in the final game of the season with the Presidents here tonight.

Twelve successive setbacks have been the Tartans' fortune since the 1927-28 season opened. Davis Elkins, Penn State, Notre Dame, Pitt, West Virginia, Geneva and W. and J. have beaten the Plaid, some of 'em twice, and Pitt had sort of rubbed things in by taking three contests, the entire city series.

DUKES SPILL DOPE

You know, it took a measly little spider to rouse one Robert Bruce, famous Scottish chieftain. John Irwin hasn't had his boys out in barns hunting for web spinning spiders this week, but he has just as timely example of the old fighting spirit in the Dukes of Duquesne. The Dukes went up to New Wilmington last night with as tough a task confronting 'em as do the Skibos to-

DOES ANYBODY KNOW THIS OLD PROSPECTOR?

Reminds us of the days of the "Forty-niners"—this picture. Here's an old prospector and his "pack mule" going through the Pirates' training grounds. He was welcome enough, but Manager Donie Bush wasn't anxious to have the mule linger around very long for fear of having some of his athletes take on the mannerisms of the animal. A team of mules never has been known to win a major league pennant.

MULLEN, RICKARD TO CONFER TODAY

By MURRAY LEWIN,
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Feb. 29.—Whether or not Sammy Mandell, the lightweight champion, will defend his title against Jimmy McLarnin in New York or Chicago, or whether or not he means to fight at all will be determined today when his manager, Eddie Kane, consults with Tex Rickard.

Jim Mullen, Windy City promoter, is with Kane in the East. Mullen has an alleged contract with Mandell to box McLarnin in a titular duel in Chicago in June, and he says he has a verbal agreement with McLarnin by which the latter agrees to fight for him in Chicago.

DE MARCO INDEFINITELY SUSPENDED

CUDDY DE MARCO, McKeesport boxer, has been indefinitely suspended for his unsatisfactory bout with Willie Harmon at Motor Square Garden Monday night, Commissioner Havey J. Boyle announced today in denying an "unofficial" report that DeMarco had been set down for one year.

Commissioner Boyle said he had informed James Mason, manager of DeMarco, immediately after the bout that he would recommend to the commission an indefinite suspension of DeMarco, and last night Cuddy called him on the telephone and became abusive, demanding to know how long the ban was intended to last.

"Is it for one year?" Cuddy asked, and, when told that it might be for any period, insisted: "Well, is it for six months?"

According to Commissioner Boyle,

the suspension may or may not be for a year, and it may be for a longer period. He said DeMarco, among other matters, had threatened to "lick him," and that when the tirade reached this stage he hung up on the boxer, with the suggestion that he do more fighting in the ring.

"There is no controversy so far as I am concerned," Boyle said. "I did not even intend to give the suspension any publicity. DeMarco rushed into print himself and I am merely confirming his announcement."

The Western Pennsylvania amateur championships get under way tonight in the Palisades Roller Rink, McKeesport. The preliminary bouts are scheduled for tonight, with the semi-finals and finals tomorrow night.

Johnny Grosso boxes Pietro Corri in a six-round bout in New York tonight. Johnny Urban, local heavyweight, meets K. O. Christner at Akron.

Bobby Brown, Cuban light-heavyweight of Philadelphia, who meets Maxie Rosenbloom of New York in the 10-round main bout at Motor Square Garden Monday night, made a big hit in beating Homer Robertson, former Pittsburgher, at Boston a few weeks ago. The Boston Advertiser said of the battle: "Bobby Brown, a Cuban middleweight, defeated Homer Robertson of Pittsburgh in 10 rounds. The latter was outclassed from the start, and was on the floor several times in the early rounds. A large swelling was raised over his left eye because of the numerous gloves that Brown bounced on and off the eyelid. Brown proved himself a slashing boxer, and demonstrated that he had a stiff blow any time he wished to unbuckle."

McTIERNAN, EVANS WIN

Buck McTiernan won the welterweight and George Evans the fly-weight honors in the amateur boxing tournament in Cleveland last night. Two other Pittsburghers were beaten. They were Andy Iovine, who lost to Pete Massco, and Bob Moody, who was nosed out by Frank Florian. McTiernan beated Eddie Clark and Evans defeated Vito Massco in their bouts.

Dave Barry, referee of the Dempsey-Tunney fight at Chicago, has been restored to good standing by the Illinois Athletic Commission.

Tex Rickard is interested in staging a return bout between Jimmy McLarnin and Sid Terris. Jimmy knocked out Sid in the first round last week.

SAM JONES, GOSLIN SIGN NAT CONTRACTS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—(AP.)—The annual last-minute contracts are trickling into Clark Griffith at the Washington Senators' training quarters at Tampa, Fla., as the rookies go through limbering up exercises waiting for the ball field to be made ready.

"Sad Sam" Jones, veteran pitcher, has finally sent word that he is on the way to camp after having refused, it is said, a $10,000 offer and received in return a contract calling for less money. "Goose" Goslin, veteran left fielder, is said to have signed a one-year contract representing a raise of $1,000 over his present salary, said to be $14,000.

Appoint New Appeal Body

By TOM BIRKS.

THE re-election of Harry Fairfield as president, William Montgomery of the International League as vice president, Tom Edwards as treasurer and Pat Donohue as secretary marked the regular monthly meeting of the Western Pennsylvania Football Association last evening. The re-election of the officers was in line with the suggestion from the president of the United States Football Association when he attended a meeting here one week ago.

When President Fairfield called the meeting to order the following delegates were present: H. Mincher, International League; Alex Adams, Monongahela League; McQuinn, Chartiers Valley League, and H. McClurg of the District League.

A real re-organization took place, Edwards and Montgomery filling the places of Tom Clark and Philip Hillen, who resigned a month ago. The new appeals committee will be composed of William J. Kerr, the writer and Carl Meisinberg.

The cup committee, under the direction of Chairman John Watson, will stand with the exception of Ivor A. Hopkins, who was suspended by the council in session.

PAULINO

However, officials revealed that the unofficial attendance was closer to 40,000. Paulino received $46,544.81 as his share, while $21,622.71 went to Godfrey.

The black-haired Spaniard, arms flailing, opened with a rush, but in the early sessions was tied up by the lithanic Godfrey, who used his huge bulk to advantage.

UZCUDUN TAKES LEAD

The tide of battle shifted to Uzcudun in the sixth. Beginning the round, he caught Godfrey flush on the jaw with a stinging left hook. It hurt the Negro and he retreated steadily with his smaller opponent following him around the ring. The Negro landed only a couple of blows during the round.

Fists flying, the Basque came out in the seventh to drive his opponent around the ring again. Godfrey was puzzled and hurt as Paulino continued to bore in, pumping both hands to the body. The crowd cheered wildly for the Spaniard as the round ended. The eighth round went the same way, with Paulino continuing on the aggressive.

Lashed with the knowledge of impending defeat, Godfrey came out in the ninth to take the play away again. He clubbed the Spaniard steadily into the body, crossing with a left to the face that had the woodchopper from the Pyrenees bleeding at the close. The tenth was another Godfrey round as he mauled and beat Paulino from rope to rope.

newspaper guys say about it."

Now the reason for Joie Ray's working on a taxi in Chicago becomes apparent. They run the Olympic events in meters instead of yards and he's been practicing up on taxi-meters.

Bridgeport referee called a fight a draw, then reversed himself the next day and said Louis (Kid) Kaplan was the winner. Error was due, he said, to a mistake in totalling up points. That makes two referees who can't count. Chicago has the other one.

February 29—This is the last time we'll have to write that date for four years.

ROY SCHOOLEY comes to bat with the statement that the story written by Carl Shatto in the Sun-Telegraph Monday stating Schooley had been invited to bid on the option for the local hockey club, by the Pittsburgh representative of L. O. Weber, was absolutely correct and that a story quoting him as denying this and saying he had been offered merely the management of the club is all wet. As was the case from the start, the Sun-Tele is giving the fans the real lowdown on the situation involving the sale and likely transfer of the local franchise, while there has been a tendency in some other quarters to cover up for the management, which has been denying everything all along the line.

SOME 12 years ago, a dapper, spirited young man burst into the sports sanctum of the newspaper with which this writer was connected at the time, laid a brief case on the desk and declared himself about as follows:

"I am Bob Cannefax of St. Louis, M. O., the greatest billiard player in the world. Look me over. I'm just stopping in town between trains. I have some pictures of myself here (opening the case). You'll need them when I win the championship."

And so on, and so on, and so on.

A lot of water has run over the dam since that night in June. Cannefax has made good and gone his way. He died on Monday out in Arizona, where he had gone to fight off the ravages of tuberculosis.

Before he bade farewell, Cannefax was world's three-cushion champion, with the exception of three years, from 1917 to 1925, and one of the toughest players to beat that ever held a cue title.

HANDICAPPED since early youth by the amputation of one of his legs because of poisoning, Cannefax faced the world with a smile, plenty of aggressiveness and an abounding confidence in himself and made the world bow to his will and like it. Although at times he may have been considered "fresh" and erratic, those who understood him attributed his ways to a high-strung temperament and admired his fighting qualities and wizardry with the cue.

An incident that occurred in a match in Pittsburgh perhaps best illustrates the type of aggressiveness that Cannefax's opponents came to know and gloss over.

An intricate point was brought up and the referee said:

"Now, Mr. Cannefax, the rules say——"

"To h— with the rules," snapped Cannefax. "I wrote the rules!"

SOME more answers to that controversy opened in this col'm last week about golf being a lopsided game because it is all offense and no defense. Harmar D. Wengel writes, I am afraid, a bit facetiously:

"On the fairness of golf question, ask your friend, who started it, about the opponent's chances of a defensive game in bowling or crap-shooting.

"If he wants to make golf a little harder and give the other player a chance, take him out on a course, and, on every tee as he goes to drive, have someone yell 'fore' in a loud voice.

"On each approach have someone do something to make him look up as he tries to make the shot.

"On each green have all opposing players dance a jig or whistle or sing while he is trying to putt.

"On each tee have the other players discuss overlapping and interlocking grips and practice swinging their clubs.

"These changes should give all the players a chance and make the game more even.

"This should convince him that, with a few changes, golf could be made almost a real game."

LEONARD A. COSTA of the East End contributes the following:

"So far, your interesting discussion on games or sports that lack equity has mentioned only golf, foot-racing and rowing.

"In the first mentioned sport, each player has the same number of holes to shoot at. In the latter two, the same distance is covered by each contestant. Usually the better man wins.

"But for sheer lack of equity, I hand the palm to all forms of billiards. How about the poor fellow whose only defense is sitting in a chair and chalking his cue while his opponent runs out his string after winning the bank?

"I admit that it would be a 1000-to-1 shot that the feat would not be duplicated by the second player, but he is not even permitted to make the attempt."

missed a shot or complaining about the cushions or the cloth. Woe to the player who showed even slight signs of disturbance from these sallies.

CANNEFAX'S slashing of the cloth when he was trailing in his match with Willie Hoppe in 1925 was accepted by fans everywhere as an excusable outburst by Bob in the stress of the contest but the powers-that-be ruled him out of competition.

To some players this would have meant disaster, but not to Bob. Instead, he immediately accepted a 20-week vaudeville contract and took to the road, "wise-cracking" about his disbarment.

In his youth, Bob learned the value of humor, even in the somewhat staid game at which he was to become champion. Traveling about giving exhibitions at pocket billiards, he would meet and defeat the local champions and then put on his bag of trick shots.

With the balls set for the stroke, Bob would stop and scratch his head, put on a big smile, and address the natives: "You know fellows, this shot reminds me of the story of the two old darkies in my home town in Missouri," and he would tell the story. All of his stories were good. As the crowd laughed he would make the shot and the stunt always went over big.

ONE angle of the latest player transfer between the New York and Boston National League clubs, whereby Catcher Zack Taylor has been sent back to the Braves by the waiver route is of more than ordinary interest to Pittsburgh fans.

That angle is the fact that the shifting of Taylor was preceded by an attempt on the part of the Boston club to buy Catcher Johnny Cummings, the North Side boy with the Giants.

Jack Cummings.

New York reports in connection with the release of Taylor disclose that at the time the Braves traded Hogan and Welsh to the Giants for Hornsby, President Fuchs of the Boston club made a big cash offer for Cummings, but that Manager McGraw only laughed.

McGraw once more made the statement that he believes Cummings will develop into a great backstop and that he will not part with the North Sider under any conditions.

THE Giant leader gives out the information that he plans to divide the bulk of Giant catching work this year between Hogan and Cummings. Therefore he figured he would not need Taylor, and asked for waivers on him.

Zack Taylor.

It was the Giant leader's object to get Taylor through and send him to Toronto to help pay for Doyle and Faulkner. He previously tried to send Devormer there but failed.

Now he has been blocked on Taylor as well, though it is doubtful if he would have let him go to any other club except Boston by the waiver route.

Philadelphia waived on Taylor and Boston, having next chance because it finished in seventh place, then claimed him, so that no other club was given a chance, though there are several that could use him.

McGraw doubtless would have refused to give him to any of those clubs through the waiver channels, but as a member of the Boston club Zack probably can be obtained by New York again any time that he is needed.

BASEBALL dopesters who are anticipating a falling off in the strength of the New York Americans this year are going to miss their guesses, in the opinion of Manager Miller Huggins. The little Yankee leader believes that not only will his club hit as well as it did last year, but that it will do even better. He even expresses the opinion that Babe Ruth may beat his record of 60 home runs, made last season.

"Will the hitting of this club, so powerful in 1927, hold to its high standard?" Huggins was asked.

"Is there any reason to believe that it won't? Or that it may not be even stronger?" countered the Yankee boss. "Ruth is in better shape than he has been at this time of the year since we got him from Boston. In fact I think he can hit 61 home runs? Well, he hit 60 last year, after a bad start. What's to stop him from hitting 61 if he gets a good start?"

Babe Ruth.

"As for Gehrig, he was the most improved ball player in the majors last year, and he should go right on improving this season. The whole club should be improved. Men like Lazzeri and Koenig will start with the advantage of the splendid experience they got in 1927.

"We are starting our training in an enviable position. There probably isn't a job open on this club except in the pitching department and in that we have some youngsters who may give us another sensation like Wiley Moore."

TOM HEENEY, the Australian battler, who is to tangle with Jack Delaney in New York tomorrow night for 15 rounds or less, does not confine his athletic activities to the fight game. Heeney is a four-sport star. He is no slouch as a soccer player, to begin with, and was fairly prominent in that game in Australia before he began to make much headway in the Queensberry racket.

Tom also went in for swimming to a considerable extent, and became so proficient that he competed in several meets with better than average success. And in addition to his showing in these sports he also was quite a prominent figure in cricket in his native land.

Tom Heeney.

Perhaps Heeney will find one of those other sports beckoning to him after his bout with Delaney tomorrow night.

Geneva Ponders Over McMillin's Successor

Lloyd Yoder, former all-America tackle at Carnegie Tech; Benny Oosterbaan, all-America end at Michigan; Ralph Vince, grid coach at John Carroll, Cleveland, and Marty Carroll, last year at Texas University, are said to be leading candidates for the position of head football coach at Geneva College.

The position was made vacant recently when Bo McMillin was released from his contract to accept a similar job with the Kansas Aggies.

night unloaded all the first-string infielders and some of the outfielders, as well as Pitcher Lee Meadows. Scout Bill Hinchman and Capt. Harold Traynor were in charge of the squad, which included several rookies. In the group were Hinchman, Meadows, Traynor, Glenn Wright and his mother, George Grantham, Sparky Adams, Clyde Barnhart, Fred Brickell, Adam Comorosky, Travis Waner, Parker Brewer, George Gottlieber, Coburn Jones and Dr. William Marks of Carnegie Tech.

Travis Waner is a cousin of Paul and Lloyd, famous outfielders of the Dreyfuss entourage. Parker Brewer is a pal of the newest Waner, the two boys being outfield sensations of the Oklahoma sand lot section. Gottlieber is the crack third-sacker of the Lincoln club of the Western League, while Jones is a semi-pro infielder.

Everybody in camp is anxious to see the new infield, composed of Capt. Traynor, Wright, Adams and Grantham, in action. That Bush has gathered together a first defense destined to stand out in baseball is the feeling of the squad in training. Little Sparky, who is about the same size as Bush, does not seem to be many days away from a fast stride.

Bush will devote most of the practice drills to batting. To serve that purpose he has 16 pitchers all set to bear down. Some of the rookies are in mid-season form, while a few of the first-string stars will show stuff today that is bound to make the regulars blink.

The week of preparation enjoyed by the sharpshooters has placed them in fine fettle for this period of the year.

Facts the Public Should Know

The public should understand that the open shop policy of this company and other operators, in this district, finds favor with the men themselves.

The Following Facts Prove This:

Thirty-five men started working non-union in the Banning No. 2 mine of the Pittsburgh Coal Company in August, 1925. We now have 8578 non-union men at work in 19 mines. At 67 mines of other companies there are 11,479 non-union men now working—a total of 20,057 open shop miners in this district to-day. These non-union mines produced more than 1,600,000 tons in January. More men would work and more coal would be produced if there were a market for the coal.

MORE MINERS WANT WORK THAN CAN BE EMPLOYED

85 percent of the men asking for work cannot be hired because our mines are full. Of 5272 men asking for work in the past 5 months, only 878 were hired.

2552 of the former union men, or 30 percent of the total working force, have returned to work for our company.

IS IT POSSIBLE THAT 8578 SATISFIED MEN ARE WRONG?

Do you think that 8578 men would voluntarily come to work for us if their earnings in our mines, and our working and living conditions did not attract them?

WHO FAVORS CONTINUING THIS CONTROVERSY?

Paid union officials are keeping this controversy alive because of the money in it for them. From September 1, 1922 to April 1, 1927 these officials in this district collected more than $3,000,000 in cash from their members. Not surprising is it that they want to hang on to an income like that?

LIVING CONDITIONS AT OUR MINES

Senator Gooding is quoted in the papers as saying that men, women and children are living in mining communities in western Pennsylvania under deplorable conditions. We believe the Senator was not referring to this company when he made that statement. We have spent approximately $1,000,000.00 in the past two years improving miners houses, streets, sidewalks and sanitary facilities in our mining towns. Every effort has been made to have these towns clean, pleasant, attractive places for our workmen and their families to live.

It is charged that officials of this company have encouraged bootlegging and the sale of liquor in our towns. These are deliberate and intentional falsehoods. Instead, we are co-operating to the fullest extent of our ability with the prohibition enforcement officials.

AFTER RENT, STORE, DOCTOR, ETC. ARE PAID OUR MEN HAD 69% OF THEIR WAGES LEFT!

It is not true that our men are underpaid; that all their earnings are taken away from them to pay store bills.

The mine payrolls of the Pittsburgh Coal Company were $12,545,132 in 1927. Amounts expended with us for store bills, furniture, doctor, rent, tools, and all other items were $3,923,502 or 31 percent of the total earned by the men. The remainder, $8,621,630, or 69 percent was paid in cash to the men. Where else could workmen pay rent, grocery, doctor, etc. and still have 69% of his income left? How does this percentage compare with what you did last year?

EMPLOYEES CAN BUY ANYWHERE

Derogatory statements have been made concerning prices charged in stores operated at the company's mining towns. There is no obligation whatever on any of our men to trade in these stores; they are patronized because these stores handle the best qualities of goods at prices lower than independent stores in the same neighborhood.

COMPARE THESE CONDITIONS WITH THOSE IN ANY INDUSTRIAL TOWN

Our houses rent for $7.50 to $10.00 per month for houses of four or five rooms. Coal is furnished our employees at $1.85 per ton. Water is free. Houses are electric lighted, the tenant paying the Light Company for current at the usual rates.

In 1927 our employees expended more than $100,000.00 in our stores for gasoline, tires and automobile accessories alone. We have spent thousands of dollars building garages to hold the automobiles of our employees.

OUR ATTITUDE TOWARD OUR EMPLOYEES

We want our employees to make good earnings. We are spending millions of dollars in improving our mines, adding improved machinery to increase the productivity of our employees so that the output of the individual man will be increased and his earnings will be larger than under former conditions. We intend to provide steady work under the best possible conditions inside and outside the mines. We want an interested, loyal and contented body of men and will do all in our power to deserve this attitude from them.

Are These Men Poorly Paid?

The Cutters are the skilled labor of the mining industry—during 1927 cutters in our mines, working steadily averaged approximately $2943 or about $250 per month. Even the unskilled class of miners—the loaders—averaged close to $1700 a year or about $150.00 a month. This is only the average — many loaders made over $2000 and some steady-working skilled cutters made from $4000 to $5000 during 1927.

Texas' Largest City, San Antonio, Growing Rapidly

By B. C. FORBES

SAN ANTONIO, Feb. 29.

THIS is enough to make California and Florida envious. One high-class real estate developer has sold $1,500,000 of property in a new sub-division in less than 100 days, and 52 homes, all of superior type, are already under construction.

That incident is illustrative of the peppiness characterizing conditions here.

FIGURES issued by the American Federation of Labor reveal that there has been less unemployment in San Antonio than in any other city for which figures have been published.

In no city have I found more confidence, more cheerfulness, more aggressiveness. In no other city visited has there been found so keen a demand for real estate nor so much activity in creating new residential sections. Compared with conditions elsewhere, San Antonio is enjoying a real estate and building boom. It is to be hoped that it will not be carried too far.

THAT San Antonio is to become "The West Point of the Air" was told in yesterday's column. It is fitting that the largest city in Texas should be erecting the largest building in the state, 32 stories. No city has a more beautiful or more ideally located auditorium—a veritable palace in a delightful setting. It has built a flood relief dam of titanic proportions. It has as many parks as the average city of three or four times its population (250,000).

San Antonians hail the new harbor at Corpus Christi as their port; sailings reached 214 in the first calendar year of the port, surely a creditable showing. Within the last year San Antonio has won a branch federal reserve bank, and an imposing home is being built for it. There has been additional railway building to the south, tapping the inexhaustibly rich Rio Grande valley, and now a vigorous movement is under way looking to the construction of a railroad to the northwest, with San Angelo as the first objective.

MY impression thus far is that the South is relatively more active than other parts of the continent at present.

Here are some facts and figures illustrating the progress being made by the metropolis of Texas:

The population has increased in 10 years from 140,000 to 250,000—the city directory figures the 1928 population at 286,917. Last year, 4,239 new families moved into the city.

It is headquarters and purchasing center for the entire Eighth Army Corps (five states). Disbursements by the Army through the San Antonio banks last year reached $18,000,000. The Army has 12 camps and flying fields here, with the historic Fort Sam Houston as the center. The site for the gigantic new aircraft training headquarters covers 2,000 acres close to the city.

There are seven large gas fields nearby. Five oil fields and refineries added some $12,000,000 last year to the local wealth. Fuel oil and natural gas for industrial plants abound in unlimited quantities.

Factories numbered 1,172 at the beginning of this year, a 15 per cent increase for the 12 months. Fully 2,350 workers were added to the factory payrolls. Products manufactured locally for the first time last year covered a wide range—fully two dozen. Sales of merchandise to retailers by San Antonio manufacturers and wholesalers during 1927 approximated $120,000,000.

Building in the city last year reached $25,000,000, a gain of $2,000,000 over 1926 and of $11,000,000 over 1925. This year's total, it is estimated locally, will reach $40,000,000.

Work has been started on the first unit of Fort Sam Houston's $10,000,000 building campaign for permanent structures. Some $5,000,000 has already been appropriated for construction work at the new "West Point of the Air," and the citizens reckon that upwards of $50,000,000 will be spent over a period of years.

Street-widening is being conducted energetically on an unusually large scale—in fact, this is one of the most impressive developments noted by the visitor.

An air mail line was established only a few weeks ago between this city and Dallas, to connect with the main transcontinental route. San Antonio is the gateway to Mexico for air mail and bids are under consideration to extend the San Antonio Air Mail Line to connect with the new Mexican system scheduled to go into immediate effect.

Bank clearings last year increased $165,000,000 to $662,000,000.

Construction has been started on the first unit of an international exposition, which is expected to become a big thing.

SAN ANTONIO, you will thus see, is not stagnant.

BUYING OF OILS STARTS STOCK UPSWING

NEW YORK, Feb. 29.—(AP.)—Stock prices turned upward today after an early period of irregularity. The buying movement, which started in the oil group, soon spread to the steel, motor, merchandising, public utility and specialty issues. Bear traders continued, nevertheless, to ferret out weak spots, forcing a sharp decline in Continental Baking A on fears for the safety of the dividend, and in some of the southern railroad shares.

Wall Street took a bullish view of the reported decision of Federal Reserve authorities to oppose legislation to restrict brokers' loans. The weekly steel trade reviews reported some irregularity in that industry, but estimated a gain of 7.6 per cent in pig iron production in February as against an increase of 6.4 per cent in the preceding month, the gain being accounted for by the increased operations of United States Steel Corporation subsidiaries.

Strength of the oil shares was believed to be based on the announcement that Secretary Work was seeking the co-operation of governors of oil producing states in an effort to secure uniform legislation for oil conservation and on unconfirmed rumors that important favorable developments were pending in Mexico. Active oil shares were bid up 1 to 3 points.

Midland Steel Products preferred and Kresge Department Stores preferred each soared 9 points, Spear & Co. preferred 7, and International Silver, International Telephone, Union Carbide and a few others advanced 2 to 5 points. Montgomery-Ward rallied from a low of 127½ to 131, Montana Power from 156½ to 162 and Greene Cananea Copper from 116¼ to 121⅝.

Atlantic Coast Line broke 4 points to a new low at 167¼ and Louisville and Nashville sold off 2 points to its former low of 146. Seaboard Air Line common sold down to a new minimum at 15¼. Rayuk Cigar and Mullins Body also were conspicuously heavy.

HARBISON-WALKER REACHES NEW HIGH LEVEL

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 29.—(AP.)—Moderate buying of some high grade bonds in today's market probably was in anticipation of huge interest and dividend disbursements due to be made tomorrow. There was, however, no great expression of activity. The tone of the list as a whole was firm.

Prompt oversubscription of the $11,000,000 Scranton Gas and Water Company was reported. Much interest was manifested in the sale at noon of the $52,000,000 New York City 4 per cent issue for transportation financing. The issue was awarded to the National City Company group on a 3.866 per cent yield basis.

Union Pacific and Rock Island liens were in the van of the railway group. Frisco issues which have been setting the pace in the past few sessions, slowed up and in one or two instances eased off on profit-taking. Missouri Pacific 5s also moved against the general trend.

A few public utility bonds attracted increased interest, particularly among the New York traction issues. Industrials continued quiet.

Italian obligations returned to the front in the foreign department, while several of the Latin American issues inclined to heaviness. Federal government securities were dull in the early trading.

NEW YORK, Feb. 29.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows, ciphers omitted in sales column (United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

Local Steel Operations.

Steel making in the local district has declined slightly to between 75 and 80 per cent of capacity, although Carnegie Steel continues to operate 90 to 95 per cent. One or two independents also are averaging 85 to 95 per cent. A few others show trifling declines.

Car Loadings Decline.

Loading of revenue freight cars for the week ended February 18 totaled 917,891, a decrease of 18,118 from the week preceding and a loss of 66,903 compared with the corresponding period in 1927, the American Railway Association reports.

Radio Earnings Expand.

Radio Corporation of America for the year 1927 reports consolidated net income of $5,478,519 after amortization of patents, depreciation and income tax, equal after preferred dividends to $6.15 a share on 1,114,400 common shares, comparing with revised net of $4,551,-091 or $4.84 a share in 1926. Fourth quarter net was $1,326,904, against $1,349,984 in the previous quarter and $674,774 in the fourth quarter of 1926.

Studebaker Corporation.

The report of the Studebaker Corporation for 1927 will show net income close to $11,500,000 after all charges and taxes, equal after preferred dividends to slightly more than $8 a share on 1,375,000 common shares, according to a director. This compares with $15,-642,119 or $10.67 a share in 1926. With respect to current operations, Studebaker Corporation officials are optimistic. Sales in January made a new high record for that period and February shipments are maintaining relative gains. It is expected the first quarter this year will run approximately 40 per cent ahead of the 1927 quarter. Those close to Studebaker feel that a substantial increase in earnings will be shown this year.

Worthington Net Gains.

Worthington Pump and Machinery Corporation reports for the year 1927 consolidated net income of $670,342 after depreciation, etc., equal to $2.74 a share on combined 11,570 shares of 7 per cent cumulative preferred A and 103,216 shares of 6 per cent cumulative preferred B, comparing with net of $161,-013 or $2.23 a share on the combined stocks in 1926.

Oil Production Down.

The American Petroleum Institute estimates daily average gross crude oil production in the United States for the week ended February 25 at 2,543,150 barrels, a decrease of 14,150 barrels from the week preceding, and the lowest production level since late in 1924.

Seminole Area Output.

The Seminole area for 24 hours ended at 7 a. m. today produced 207,270 barrels, against 206,954 Monday.

Gasoline Up in New York.

U. S. Glass Reports Loss.

United States Glass Company reports for the year 1927 net loss from operations of $147,937, compared with net profit of $91,443 the previous year. Profit and loss surplus as at December 31 1927, stood at $113,644 as compared with $338,851 at the end of 1926. In his report to the stockholders, Edwin F. Rick, president, says: "Since our last annual report improvements at Glassport, including the state road and bridge, are near completion and we will now make an effort to dispose of our Glassport Land Company property at its increased valuation. Expenditures for new equipment during the year amounted to $138,685. Settlement of royalty claims was made at $55,000, an amount decidedly less than claimed by the owner of the patents. Notes payable have been increased $214,000, which has been used for improvements, advertising, patent settlement and royalty claims. In addition to taking losses amounting to $71,414 on old inventory, an additional $100,000 was charged off as a conservative measure. After deducting the following losses—inventory shrinkage, $71,414; loss on discarded equipment, $4,572; depreciation, $155,477; Glass port Land Company, $1,541, the net loss of the company amounts to $147,937.

Pittsburgh Steel Bonds.

The Union Trust Company of Pittsburgh, trustee of Pittsburgh Steel Corporation first mortgage 6 per cent sinking fund gold bonds, dated April 1, 1925, announces that it will redeem 50 designated bonds on April 1, 1928, at 102½ and interest to that date. As trustee of Det Norske Nitrid Aktieselkap 15-year 6 per cent sinking fund gold bonds, Union Trust has given notice that it will redeem 175 certain numbered bonds on April 1, 1928, at 105 and interest to that date.

Jones Bros. Tea.

Net profit of Jones Tea Company and subsidiaries for 1927 was $403,143, equal to $10.72 a share on 37,600 shares of 7 per cent preferred stock, on which no dividends have been paid since 1924, as compared with $310,717 or $8.27 a share in 1926.

Inspiration Copper.

Inspiration Copper reports 1927 net income of $1,740,651, equal to $1.48 per share, against $1,310,694 or $1.10 a share in 1926. Production was estimated at 81,000,000 pounds at a cost of 10.664 cents per pound. In 1926 production was 81,626,044 pounds, costing 12.441 cents.

Reynolds Holds Loss Even.

Reynolds Spring Company net loss was $162,369 for year 1927, comparing with loss in 1926 of $154,035.

Transcontinental Oil.

Transcontinental Oil Company for 1927 shows net loss of $1,340,146 after charges, comparing with net income of $1,709,304 or 2 cents a common share in 1926.

Outlook for Oil Industry.

If the demand for gasoline increases in 1928 at the average rate of increase of 1927 over 1926, according to a statement issued yesterday by Samuel Unterbilder & Co., members of the New York Stock Exchange, it is estimated that the refineries of the country will require over 1,000,000,000 barrels of crude oil in 1928, which would compare with a total available supply, domestic production plus all imports, of 900,000,000 barrels in 1927.

The statement says: "If production in 1928 continues at the present rate, and imports and exports of oil average about the same as they did in 1927, our total available supply of oil would amount to about 900,000,000 barrels. This would necessitate the drawing of about 100,000,000 barrels of oil from storage to supply the difference between the indicated demand and the estimated supply."

Production Trend Down.

Daily production of oil in the United States is now over 2,600,000 barrels, or about 9 per cent under the high point of 1927 and over 100,000 barrels per day, or 4 per cent under the production at the corresponding date in 1927. Consumption of oil is now estimated to be about 125,000 barrels a day, or 5 per cent greater than at the corresponding period last year. Consumption of gasoline is estimated at a rate about 11 per cent greater than at the corresponding period last year.

At no time in the history of the oil business has there been as much as 25,000,000 barrels of oil drawn from storage without causing a sharp advance in the price of crude and refined oils. While stocks of oil on hand at the end of 1927 were larger than at the end of 1926, they amounted to less than at the end of any year since 1921, except 1926.

Stocks of gasoline on hand at the end of 1927 were lower than on any corresponding date since 1924, and were lower, in days' supply on hand, than at any corresponding date in the modern history of the oil industry.

Railroads' Earning Prospects.

With increased activity in the steel, automotive and building industries, however, rail earnings should soon reflect the resultant increase in traffic, says the United Business Service of Boston.

Never in history have the carriers been better equipped than at present, and it is therefore likely that expenditures for maintenance and equipment will, in the aggregate, remain at relatively low levels, permitting an increasingly larger proportion of income to accrue to net.

In view of the fact, however, that the first quarter last year disclosed the largest net operating income of any similar quarter in history, it is very doubtful if comparative results will show any general improvement until the second quarter. There will be exceptions, of course, but outside the northwestern grain carriers and some of the southwestern roads which were particularly hard hit by flood conditions last year, there will be few.

Hardware Markets Pick Up.

Considerable improvement in the condition of the hardware trade in general is noted this week, says Hardware Age. The most noticeable activity is in spring merchandise for future delivery. Retailers brought up their stocks after inventory in January, and the present upturn is taken to mean that they have become again depleted. The hardware business promises to be very satisfactory for this spring and summer. Building programs are extensive in all parts of the country, and industrial conditions are much more settled. Prices in practically all cases are unusually firm. Collections are slow in some sections, but satisfactory in the main.

Jones Chapman & Co.

Announcement is made that Leroy J. Myers has become associated with the Pittsburgh office of F. W. Chapman & Co., Inc. Mr. Myers has been with one of the leading Pittsburgh investment houses for four years and is a member of the Pittsburgh Bond Club. He was a University of Pennsylvania student.

National Lead Earned $10.23.

The National Lead Company earned $10.23 on the common in 1927 against $35.33 a share in 1926. Net income amounted to $4,878,197 after reserves, against $5,904,547 in 1926. Earnings before including insurance reserve were equal to $6.50 on the common. The statement to stockholders says: "Sales of white lead have been satisfactory, equaling the year of 1926. Sales of other products fell off about 10 per cent. Competition is keen and in the closing months of the year there were rapidly declining margins of profit in every line. Serious competition has been developed between lead and other metals in lines where lead for centuries enjoyed deserved prestige, and especially between different pigments used for the same purpose. No change in the dividend rate has been suggested by anybody, nor is it under consideration."

Lead Price Cut 15 Points.

The American Smelting and Refining Company has reduced the price of lead 15 points to 6 cents a pound.

S. W. P. Pipe Distributing Surplus.

The South West Penn Pipe Lines declared a dividend of $1 per share and an extra dividend of $3 per share, payable April 2 to record of March 15. The company issued a statement which said that in addition to the $10 dividend just declared, it is the intention of the board to pay at least $10 more this year. The next will be declared on July 2. It was also stated that the paying of at least $30 in dividends this year will necessitate a reduction of capital stock, as the profit and loss account amounts to only $539,557. A meeting of stockholders will be called to act upon the reduction of capital stock in order that a return from the capital stock reduction may be made, thus making the total amount to be paid to stockholders next less than the amount above mentioned.

National City Gets New York Stock.

The National City Company syndicate, composed of First National Bank, Guaranty Trust Company, Bankers Trust Company, Brown Bros. & Co. and associates was awarded $51,000,000 4-year 4 per cent corporate stock of the city of New York. The syndicate paid a premium of $234,784.

Mid-West Steel Expansion.

Wall Street hears that Mid-West steel companies are spending millions to keep abreast with modern mechanical construction and have the most ambitious expansion programs in recent years. Changes in organization due to mergers are in part responsible, but in plants not so affected efforts are being made to modernize equipment and to increase capacity for the manufacture of certain products. The industry enters March with heavy unfilled tonnages.

Briggs Net Cut Down.

Briggs Manufacturing Company reports 1927 net profit of $1,150,719, as against $6,178,532 in 1926.

100 Bid for Follansbee Preferred.

The new Follansbee Bros. 6 per cent preferred stock, "when issued," was 100 bid in the local curb market today. Stock was offered at 100½.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 29.—(AP.)—The curb market turned bullish today, evidently in sympathy with the "big board," after an irregular opening. Half a dozen industrials and several oil stocks were lifted to new highs, the oils rising on reports efforts are being made at Washington to obtain uniform state conservation legislation. Utilities were irregular.

Safeway Stores again was the leader in the advance, soaring 11 points to a new high at 410. Others to reach new high ground included Warner Brothers' Pictures, Bullard Machine and Tool, General Laundry Machinery and Melville Shoe. Firestone Tire, Sheaffer Pen, Mavis, Midland Steel, Tubize Art Silk and Bank Italy moved up.

Old favorites sagged with the loss of buying support. Stromberg Carburetor dropped to a new low at 26½ and U. S. Gypsum to a new low at 73. West Point Manufacturing lost 4 points, Singer slumped nearly 10 on a small turnover and American Department Store sagged after touching a new high at 19⅝. Other weak spots were Consolidated Dairy, Swift International and A. C. Spalding.

Electric Bond and Share led the Utilities with a gain of 1¼ points, but other advances were small. Blackstone Valley Gas and Electric dropped nearly 2 points.

Creole Syndicate and Northern Pipe Line led the advance in oils, both touching new highs, Creole on reports of a pending merger with Standard of New Jersey. Declaration of an extra dividend failed to rouse South West Penn Pipe line, which sagged a point. Prairie Oil dropped another 5 points and Vacuum Oil lost slightly. Humble, Penn Mex Fuel and Illinois Pipe Line gained 2 points each.

ROB ROCHESTER STORE THIRD TIME IN 2 WEEKS

ROCHESTER, Pa., Feb. 29.—For the third time within two weeks, Rom's wholesale grocery store was robbed last night. Cigarets worth $300 were taken. On the other occasions $700 worth of merchandise and $600 in cash and checks were taken.

STATE OFFICE NOT OFFERED MORIN

No offer of the post of Secretary of Labor and Industry in Gov. Fisher's cabinet has been made to Congressman John M. Morin, it was learned definitely today. A published report said the offer would be made to prevent Morin from running for United States Senator against David A. Reed.

The present Secretary of Labor and Industry, Charles A. Waters, is a candidate for Auditor General with the support of the Mellon and Vare organizations. Even if elected, Waters would not become Auditor General until May, 1929, when the office becomes vacant, and it is probable he will hold his cabinet position until that time.

According to stories from the east, Morin is ready to file for Senator, but has made no public announcement. There is a possibility that he will file before Monday, the last day, pending final word of the intentions of Senator William S. Vare, who is in Florida. If Vare, upon his return, declares openly for Reed, Morin could withdraw any time before March 12.

ASK HEARING HERE IN CONCERT FIGHT

Both sides in the Pittsburgh Sunday symphony concert case have asked that the appeal to the State Superior Court be argued in Pittsburgh. In a joint petition, W. H. Pratt, counsel for the Sabbath Association of Allegheny County, on behalf of the commonwealth, and Albert C. Hirsh, attorney for the defendants, yesterday asked continuance of the argument from the session of the Superior Court at Harrisburg, beginning March 12, to the Pittsburgh session, beginning April 9.

Promoters of Sunday concerts given by the Pittsburgh Symphony Society were prosecuted under the laws of 1794 and each defendant was fined $25 by a justice of the peace. The case was appealed to the County Court and the decision was reversed. The present appeal to the Superior Court is unusual because the commonwealth is the appellant.

COAL COMPANY WELCOMED PROBE

An interesting sidelight on the Senate investigation of the coal strike is afforded in the following letter, which J. D. A. Morrow, president of the Pittsburgh Coal Company, sent to the strike-breakers before the senatorial inquirers visited the company's camps:

To Our Men:

The United States Senate is going to investigate the coal business of Western Pennsylvania. You are being told all kinds of stories about what this may lead to. Do not worry about these sensational reports. The government is just as friendly to you as it is to any one else.

This company is glad to have the Senate Committee make this investigation and see for themselves how we operate our mines and how our miners and their families live. We want them to visit our towns and see for themselves the extensive improvements we are making.

We will not change our policy. Our mines will continue to run on the present basis, and no other way. We will continue to improve our mines and increase our production. We are working out our plans to maintain steady running time at all our mines with increased output. You can help us maintain work every day by taking care to load your coal clean.

We would like to talk with each one of you personally and answer your questions about these stories and reports that are being circulated. Since we cannot see you all, we are writing this letter to tell you that our policy will not change. We appreciate your loyalty to us and assure you of our loyalty to you.

Very truly yours,
J. D. A. MORROW,
President.

BUGS BAER Says

PITTSBURGH man has just invented an engine which will make oil wells spout a different flavor.

It requires no gasoline, deriving its power by extracting nourishment from radio programs.

It is known as a free energy motor. Being operated electromagnetically, it inhales its pepper from the ground and the air.

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER.

It sounds like a combination of Japanese fern and potato vine. But many scientific scouts have seen it work and are amazed by their own intelligence.

Free energy is a new form of motive power. Can you imagine what this stuff would do in a bottle? Its wave length is unlimited. Twenty miles on a gallon is nothing. The dealers in free energy have a slogan guaranteeing eternity on a pint.

When free energy becomes the popular automotive fuel every edifice will be a filling station.

When your tank gets empty in the woods just attach your eyeglasses to an old oak tree and magnetize your tanks, your motor and your dollar watch.

Or connect your tank with an abandoned brewery chimney and drain it of its free energy like a bee operating on a sunflower.

Lindbergh has seen the new motor work, but reserves his opinion. However, there is no doubt that the free energy idea is practicable.

There's only one more mystery for man to decipher and then he will have conquered the air. That problem is the ability of seagulls to follow ferryboats without flapping their wings.

A prominent Staten Island scientist who has studied the flight of seagulls claims the birds get their free energy from the fumes of tobacco from the smoking room of the boat.

Other experts insist that the birds tune in with the deck musicians and transform Italian operas into nervous static.

We look forward to the introduction of free energy.

In fact, we look so far into the future that we can see its inventor raising the price on it.

Direct Popular Choice of Presidents a National Need

The politicians tell us that we are the most free and democratic people in the world.

Then they join with the special interests and nominate all our candidates for us.

And we divide in two parties, shouting for the candidates THEY have selected.

NO RULER in this or any other time has ever possessed as much power as the President of the United States.

He absolutely rules one branch of Government, the Executive. He dominates a second branch, the Judicial, because he appoints the entire Federal judiciary. By his veto power and his use of patronage he controls the Legislative to a large degree.

Upon him depend the welfare and happiness of a hundred and twenty million people. Nevertheless, they have no real voice in choosing him in this supposedly free democracy.

The future President is chosen at one of two political conventions, both dominated by special interests which have something to gain by control of the Government.

Manufacturing interests, railroad interests, banking interests, oil interests, electric power interests and the professional politicians all forget their differences and gather round the big board at each convention and make up the slate.

They see to it at one convention or another a candidate satisfactory to them is nominated. Then they see to it that the other convention chooses a candidate who cannot possibly be elected. That system was worked perfectly in 1920 and in 1924. It is in prospect this year also, as every intelligent person knows.

That is, our votes count for nothing if somebody else controls all nominations.

The way for the people to nominate candidates for President is by state presidential primaries to take the place of the state conventions, boss controlled, which now choose delegates to the two national conventions.

Only seventeen of the forty-eight states today have presidential primaries, barely a third. There are seventeen different presidential primary laws. Some day they will be made uniform by a constitutional amendment providing direct popular nomination and election of President, just as we have amended the Constitution to provide direct election of Senators.

At the present time, the states have the sole constitutional right to determine how they will choose the presidential electors to which they are entitled. So it is up to the thirty-one backward states to pass presidential primary laws.

The legislatures of some of them are now in session. A very simple provision on the party primary ballot will give the people a chance to influence the choice of presidential candidates this year. It is only necessary to add to that ballot the words: "My choice for President is.....; my second choice is..... my third choice is ....."

It is a small step, but a real one, towards the goal of direct nomination and election of President by popular vote, doing away with the jobbery of national conventions and doing away with the obsolete device of presidential electors, interposed between the people and their choice.

Reed Asks, Are People Ready to Curb Abuses?

Senator James A. Reed, master of terse expression, in one of his western speeches touched the secret of much American unrest when he said that the average man "has come to regard the law as a sword of oppression rather than a shield of protection."

He was referring especially to our "army of snoopers and spies" which "swarm over the land like the locusts of Egypt, devouring the substance of the people, prying into their private affairs and regulating their trade and business."

He justly chided our mischievous habit of seeking to "do by legislative enactment that which belongs to the school, the church and the home." Namely, to make people temperate and virtuous by decree, when all human experience proves that these desirable ends can be attained only by the promptings of conscience.

But there are other areas in which the law may function as a sword of oppression. It is oppressive when wealth may breach it with impunity and flout its penalties by interminable court appeals and delays. As in the malodorous oil cases, for instance.

It can be oppressive when used to void contracts which assure to users of public services reasonable rates and charges or to make difficult and needlessly expensive the performances of those services by the people themselves.

Senator Reed is seeking to ascertain if the people who are conscious of these abuses in government are inclined to accept them meekly or incur the burden of trying to correct them.

There is presumably a point at which popular complacency ends. We have had a long period of indifference. The seers are scanning the skies for signs of a change in mood.

Milk, Beer, Wine, Whisky

Drugs Worst of All

Strange are the effects of drink and drugs in monkeys and men.

Give a monkey milk, he is satisfied. Give him beer, he won't drink milk; wine, beer, he won't drink, and after tasting whiskey, he isn't satisfied with anything else, and is a disagreeable monkey.

Among human beings, those that drink beer commit few crimes, except suicide, which hurts themselves, not others.

Whiskey drinkers often beat their wives and children; commit even worse crimes. Those that take drugs, as millions now do in the United States, sometimes become atrociously cruel and criminal.

You read of a miserable woman murdered by confederates who covered her nostrils and mouth with ten yards of adhesive tape.

Fortunately drugs help detectives in their work. Depriving a criminal of his drugs will make him betray his associates.

The murderers of that woman were caught during "an opium debauch," which made them talk recklessly.

Pensions for Ministers

Another denomination, the Lutherans, is raising a fund to retire aged pastors on incomes that will keep them from dire want.

Mention of our wealth will excite blushes so long as the fine men who devote their lives unselfishly to moral instruction are left penniless in their old age.

Garrett P. Serviss Says:

Nature's Riddles

"Last night (February 3), while walking south in Queens Village, Long Island, I saw a big ball of fire about the size of the moon in the clear sky. As it traveled downward it developed a tail as bright as its head. It had the shape of a mammoth chubby carrot. As the tail grew so the head diminished, and the whole phenomenon disappeared in a flash—as it had started. I have seen shooting stars before, but never anything so awe-inspiring as this. P. S.—A week ago I wrote you asking how a sailboat can travel against the wind.—B. F."

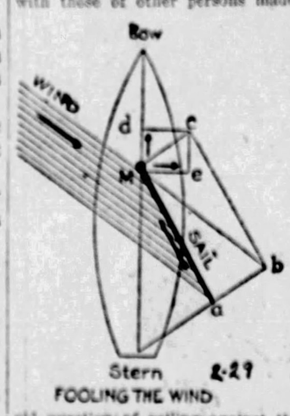
FOR many reasons many questions have to go unanswered. But your vivid description of the meteor should earn special consideration for the sailboat question. Take the meteor first.

It was of the variety usually called a fireball, which means hardly anything more than that it was much brighter than the average meteor, which generally appears only as a fiery streak in the sky.. The downward motion was evident not so much of its falling as that it was moving away from you in a southerly direction. You heard no sound and the distance of the meteor was probably many miles. Perspective caused its path to appear vertical; the real path was no doubt much less steep—only a downward slope in the atmosphere.

Two or three circumstances, neglected in your account, would have furnished valuable information to the astronomer. First, the hour and minute of the occurrence; second, the location of the path with reference to the stars of the constellation, or constellations, across which it passed; third, the approximate length of the path, and an estimate of the total duration of the flight.

Then your observations could have been compared with those of other persons made elsewhere, and the elevation, direction of motion, speed, etc., of the celestial projectile might have been calculated. There has been a notable increase of late in the reports of fireballs, or meteorites, seen. Probably this is due to the greater number of people who now take notice of the sky rather than to any increase in the actual number of these wonderful bodies coming in on us from interplanetary space.



And, now for the old question of sailing against the wind. There is a really beautiful principle involved in that—beautiful as a rose to a logical mind, and delightful as a six-bladed, pearl-handled knife to an active-minded boy. It goes under the name of the "resolution of force." I show you a picture to explain it. Don't let the geometry appall you; a child can understand it.

You see the outline of a sailboat. You see its sail drawn back so as to catch the wind blowing it from ahead on the left. The wind strikes the sail along its full length, but we need consider only the element of the wind which meets the head of the sail. Let the line M-b represent the full force of the wind. Now, by our principle we can resolve this into two elements, one indicated by the arrow parallel with the sail in the direction M-a; the other by the line M-c, at right angles to the sail. The force parallel to the sail produces no effect upon the boat, the force M-c alone tending to move it.

Now, (don't be alarmed, it's easy), resolve this force M-c into two parts, M-e and M-d. The latter, M-d, is the measure of the forward motion produced by the wind while M-e measures the drift to leeward. If this drift could be completely controlled by the keel and rudder, the only motion would be along M-d. The "closeness to the wind" with which a boat may sail is often exaggerated, but ice-boats, which are held steady in direction by the skate-like keel, sometimes fool old Boreas to the heart's content of their pilots.

Winning Friends

THERE are some persons with whom you would like to become friendly.

Somehow you have never been able to gain much recognition from them.

You go over the ways you have adopted in win their favor and you feel sure that nothing you have done so far has interested them in the least.

Perhaps the reason is that you try too hard to please them.

Really worthwhile persons do not choose as friends those who feel inferior in any way.

They don't want friends who give an impression of inferiority.

Reliable, dependable people want friends who represent something.

If you act as if you felt made of an inferior clay and crave favors from them, they cannot have the proper respect for you.

It may flatter their vanity but it does not cause them to honor you.

When you submerge yourself and your individuality to win favor, you are bound not to be accepted upon an equality basis.

You are looking for a friendly exchange from someone who will dispense gifts, so better be yourself, keep your own respect and win as a self-respecting person.

Late Gratitude

I GIVE you thanks, though you have long since passed
Beyond my love or need;
Though I went thankless through slow years, at last
I treasure now each deed,
Each word and look that guided me aright
Through all the changeful years,
Each counsel casting warm and friendly light
To banish futile fears.
There are fresh debts I owe for many things
And this account is old,
But gratitude each hour recurrent springs
As still your boons unfold.
I give you thanks for all that I have known
Of power and of peace,
Late gratitude to you and you alone
For gifts that bring release.

Bores Gagged

NEW YORK the other night had as a novelty a "speechless banquet."

It did not yield a great deal of personal glory on the first page, but a good time was had by all.

The world is perhaps not yet ready for a gag on all after-dinner talking. Since the radio came most of us like to hear a good speech when we can shut off the bores.

That, by the way, is a great advantage which the radio has over the long-suffering toastmaster and guests.

But if there could be an advance censorship of speeches, not so much for contents as for manner of delivery and length, society would be spared much hardship.

Tales that are Told

Courtesy

PAT'S job was to guard the entrance to a road which led to an old and unsafe bridge. Presently a large car came along, and Pat put up his hand.

"What's the matter?" demanded the driver.

At that moment Pat recognized him as his landlord.

"Oh, it's yerself, yer honour," he said, genially.

"Yes, it is," was the snappy reply.

"'Tis all right, then," said Pat, waving the car onwards. "My orders are to see that no traffic goes through because of the rotten bridge, but seein' it's yerself, 'tis a pleasure—go ahead, sir!"

A Point Problem

THE chairman of a local council in Ireland was not an educated man. He was giving his account of the year's splendid work done by the council. He read the report by the medical officer of health, and quoted the death rate as 12.9 per thousand.

"Mr. Chairman," asked one of his opponents, thinking to make capital out of his lack of education, "what does 12 point 9 mean?"

"What does it mean?" replied the chairman, looking severely at his questioner. "It means that out of every thousand inhabitants twelve have died and nine are at the point of death."—London Tit Bits.

Doctor's Orders

DROWSILY the hotel manager turned in his bed. Whirr-r, whirr-r! rang the telephone. Muttering something very low, he reached for the receiver.

"Send someone up to Room 77 at once," came the voice of old Mrs. Moneybags.

"I trust you are not ill, madam?" he inquired.

"I soon shall be if something is not done!" replied the old lady, in excited tones.

Hurriedly dressing, the manager went to Room 77.

"Now, listen!" said the old lady, angrily. "What is that noise overhead? It has been going on for the last two hours, and has nearly driven me mad."

"I cannot understand it, madam," answered the manager, listening curiously to the bumps and bangs overhead. "The gentleman in that room is ill."

Quickly he ran upstairs and inquired the cause of the disturbance. The occupier of the room was a Frenchman.

"It ees the medicine, m'sieur," he explained on being questioned. "The doctor did say, 'Take two nights running, then skip a night.' M'sieur, pardon, but I was doing the skip!"

Three Things

By DR. FRANK CRANE.

GABRIEL WELLS had a Christmas card in which he says that there are three things that constitute a rounded out life: Power, Pleasure and Peace.

The more we think of it the more this seems to be a very good definition.

There is not much satisfaction in a life of no power. What gives zest to sports is the employment of our powers and we all applaud the victor, that is, the man who shows the most power. This includes both mentality or mental acumen and skill.

As for pleasure, they have learned a great lesson who have found out the biding pleasures of life are those that come from serving others. The pleasure that we experience in merely receiving gifts or benefits, merely enjoying things that are our own, the pleasures of possession and amusement are temporary and they fade.

But one who devotes his life to bringing joy into the lives of others has an unfailing source of satisfaction.

Peace comes from the firm establishment or connection of life with certain fixed principles. There are some things which, when we have decided upon them, we lay on the shelf. They are not to be reopened. One who is continually arguing the fundamentals is always in hot water and unsatisfied.

That is the advantage of a belief in God. It is something fixed and settled, a central sun about which all of our other thoughts and opinions may revolve.

Of course the belief in God does not imply any congeries of fantastic connotations. One's belief in God may take many forms, but it must have a central core of repose. A life without inner repose is constantly buffeted to and fro by contrary passions.

One who has power sufficient to enjoy his ability to overcome obstacles, who takes pleasure in giving pleasure to others, and who has inner repose enough to keep him content in the center of his being, can be truly said to live a somewhat complete life.

O. O. McINTYRE

On the Ocean

AT SEA, Feb. 29.—If it were possible to comb Fifth avenue, the Bowery and Broadway for their most distinctive types, they could be matched on almost any of the trans-Atlantic liners. A ship attracts human oddities in the same fashion molasses draws flies.

There is the fresh—O, how fresh—collegiate who seems to have been slapped in the face with a bar towel or something and remains "that way" throughout the voyage. If there is a doubt about his college association he will sing "Boola, Boola" to clinch it. He is just a beautiful noise. And a pest.

And the sea sophisticate. He speaks of the finest ship you can mention as "a drafty old tub." He has participated in all the ocean disasters and spent countless days in an open boat, serving precious water out of an eye-dropper. He is an amusing but grandiose liar.

There is the rich young idler who has contracted an European liaison with a chorus cutie. To all appearances they are honeymooners until about the fifth day, when he will likely sour of the attachment and begin wrinkling his brows to figure out how he can shake her in London fog.

And the ocean nymph who plies the liners practicing the age-old profession. She selects her victim with the accuracy of a hawk spiraling over a brood of innocent chicks, and swoops down on her prize as bewilderingly. He will be wirelessing his bank at Plymouth or Havre. They all do.

There is the worldly gentleman of the smoking room with fan-shaped whiskers and a monocle. He is the sort you fear will ask you where you are from and you will have to tell him some outlandish whistle stop with the conventional red depot. He speaks of Rangoon as casually as we speak of Chicago.

And those important men who travel with valets, chauffeurs, and secretaries. And ladies with companions and maids. The aged couple from Iowa on the first journey. The young sap—usually with wide ears and buck teeth—who follows a celebrated beauty around like a poodle. When Papa catches him he will have to go back to Yale.

A sudden toss of a ship does the damage of the proverbial bull in the china shop. A quick nosedive today and $400 worth of china and glassware was gathered up in dustpans.

The feature attraction on board for the children is the Punch and Judy show in the late afternoon. Today I talked to the impresario—a little old man in his 70's who has been amusing little folk for 40 years in the Grand Guignols along the Champs Elysees, and at sea. He uses snuff and curls his hair.

In the smoking room this afternoon a bottle of champagne played its little prank. It was resting in a receptacle at the table side when a lurch sent it spinning into the air with a pinwheel spray of foam, most of which drenched a gentleman napping in a deep-cushioned chair. He awakened with the wild look of one determined to make it to a life boat in nothing flat.

A garlic-eating family from Turkey occupies a cabin directly across the companionway. So far I have had no difficulty finding my quarters.

A bit of repartee on the promenade deck. A boyish fellow skidded on the slippery floor and measured his length.

"Hit the deck!" cried an observer.

"Hallelujah, brother!" hailed the victim, getting up.

The blue print. The boyish young fellow was Vincent Youmans, who wrote the play, "Hit the Deck," and its rousing song, "Hallelujah."

Claire Luce braved a rolling ship to do her ostrich fan dance at the concert this evening to rousing cheers and a couple of boxers from the second cabin put on a lively four-round slugging bout. But the hit of the evening was the ship's cat that walked sedately across the dance floor with her five kittens trailing behind, single file. I thought Ambassador Herrick would topple out of his chair in a fit of laughter.

In the Dark

JAPAN is trying to bring 9,000,000 new voters to the polls on February 20 by forbidding candidates to advertise or to make house to house canvasses.

Possibly Japan regards voters somewhat as we regard jurors—the more efficient the less they know.
